Recent adjustments to new law involve athletic programs

City, county schools 'few steps ahead' in elimination of sex bias

By PHIL LEWIS

Record-Herald Staff Writer

While many Ohio secondary schools are planning to revamp policies to comply with the 1972 anti-sex discrimination amendment, Miami Trace and Washington C.H. school superintendents agree that they are a few steps ahead in eliminating sex bias.

All federally funded schools should be undergoing a self-examination period this year to study current practices and to plan for program revisions to bring them in compliance with Title IX—the part of the amendment designed to eliminate sex discrimination in schools.

Several of the major points of Title IX which would apply to Fayette

County and Washington C.H. schools are:

—All classes will have to be open to members of both sexes with the exception of classes dealing with human sexuality;

—Physical education classes must become co-educational and girls athletics must get equal opportunities and facilities;

—Guidance counselors must guard against steering students to traditional male-female classes or occupations; and —Pregnant students will no longer be required to go into programs separate from the regular classroom.

"We are probably a few steps ahead of some schools in complying to Title IX," said Washington C.H. School Superintendent Edwin M.

Nestor. "It didn't cause any furor here."

"We recognized before anything was mentioned about a Title IX that the girls weren't getting the proper attention," Nestor added.

According to Nestor, Washington C.H. schools have long abolished sex segregation in courses such as home economics and vocational studies. He said the more recent adjustments to the new law involve intrascholastic athletics.

"We now send girls teams by bus to games (involving softball, basketball, volleyball and track) and they receive financial support in our athletic program," he said.

Miami Trace School District Superintendent Guy Foster echoed Nestor's remarks.

"Vocational agriculture which was only for boys switched to co-educational several years ago. The same with family living and home economics which was only for girls," Foster said.

He also agrees with Nestor that the more recent programs to eliminate sex discrimination are in athletics.

"We have tried to extend possibilities for girls in athletics. This year we have a girls' track team," he said.

"As we understand it you either have to have a girls track team or combine girls and boys into one track team," Foster added.

The one problem with the recent organization of girls teams in both schools has been financial. Girls sports are not supporting programs yet putting the cost burden on the schools' male football and basketball programs.

"We're not making a fuss. We feel the whole school should benefit from the football proceeds," the Miami Trace School District superintendent said. "Our athletic department has never operated at a loss and this (recent cost burden) concerns us."

The period of self-analysis for each school is scheduled to end July 21 when federally-funded schools must begin to make Title IX effective and applicable.

Both school superintendents cannot see any big problems left in complying to the rules.

Public schools have also been required to adopt a policy stating their intentions to abide by the new law, appoint someone as coordinator for Title IX compliance, and establish a grievance procedure for staff and students, who have complaints about Title IX violations.

Both the Fayette County Board of Education and the Washington C.H. Board of Education have already adopted the compliance policy and both school districts have coordinators.

Assistant high school principal Tom Rankin will overlook Title IX compliance programs at Washington C.H. schools and Foster will handle the duties in Miami Trace district.

"If there are any concerns that sex discrimination has occurred, I'd be happy to listen to the argument or complaint," Foster said.

Kirks still 'satisfactory'

Home fire injuries fatal to utility company worker

A Dayton Power and Light Co. employee died Thursday from injuries he suffered in an explosion and fire at a Washington C.H. home where he was working.

Dale R. Dawes, 45, Rt. 1, Washington C.H., an employee of the Dayton Power and Light Co. for the past 16 years, died at 7:15 p.m. Thursday in University Hospital, Columbus.

Dawes was checking on an apparent gas leak Wednesday night in the basement of the James Kirk residence, 908 Lincoln Drive, when the explosion occurred.

The utilities company worker had suffered severe burns over 25 per cent of his body from the explosion and fire which occurred when a spark leaped from an electrical socket and caused gas within the home to explode.

Kirk, 35, his wife, Edith, 34, and a daughter, Tammy, 13, were injured in the fire. They are listed in "satisfactory" condition today at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Four Washington C.H. firemen also suffered minor injuries in the blaze.

The Kirk family reportedly got out of their home at 4 p.m. Wednesday after smelling natural gas in the home. A Dayton Power and Light Co. crew arrived to check the home to find the leak.

Officials said the Kirks returned home at 6 p.m. The family and Dawes were in the basement of the house when the explosion occurred. One of the Kirks' daughters, Kim, 16, was not at home at the time of the incident.

Firemen said the explosion blew out the walls of the one-story, ranch-style home and collapsed the roof. The fire followed.

A neighboring home owned by Leo B. Edwards, 902 Lincoln Drive, was damaged by the blast and fire.

Firemen estimated the loss to the Kirk home at $50,000 and $15,000 to the Edwards residence.

Born in Fayette County, Dawes had been employed by the Dayton Power and Light Co. district in Washington C.H. in 1959. He was a U.S. Army veteran, having served during the Korean War.

He is survived by his wife, the former Phyllis Teeters, whom he married Aug. 10, 1953; a daughter, Mrs. James (Cindy) Orebaugh, Rt. 1, Greenfield; a son, Philip, at home; a granddaughter, Jennifer Orebaugh; his father, Charles Dawes, of Greenfield; three brothers, Kenneth Dawes, of Good Hope, Delbert Dawes, of Springfield, and Charles Dawes, of Chillicothe, and a sister, Mrs. Carl (Wanda) Jinks, of Greenfield. He was preceded in death by his mother, two sisters and a brother.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday in the Murray Funeral Home, Greenfield, with the Rev. Noble Miller officiating. Burial will be in Good Hope Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 4 p.m. Sunday.

Nixons plan China visit

TOKYO (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon and his wife Pat have been invited to visit China beginning Feb. 21 and have accepted "with pleasure," the official Hsinhua news agency said today.

It said the visit will mark the fourth anniversary of the Nixons' first visit to China.

"The historic visit to China made by President Richard Nixon of the United States of America and Mrs. Nixon and the issuance of the joint communique by China and the United States in 1972 have played a significant role in improving Sino-U.S. relations," Hsinhua said.

"The Chinese side and former President Nixon both consider that a revisit to China by him will be appropriate. The government of the People's Republic of China has extended an invitation to him and Mrs. Nixon to revisit China on February 21, 1976, the fourth anniversary of their first visit. They have accepted the invitation with pleasure."

Barbara Walters of NBC's "Today" show quoted government sources in Washington as saying China plans to send a plane to pick up Nixon in California.

Nixon wasn't immediately available for comment.

NBC said an official of the Chinese mission to the United States visited the White House on Thursday to advise President Ford about the Nixon trip.

ICE ESCAPADES — Though the icy covering over roads and sidewalks closed all the area schools, some people chose to take advantage of its benefits, in spite of the fact that one might occasionally have to experience some

"hard" aspects of life. Connie Richards did not seem upset over the fact that her brother Tony was temporarily grounded.

Freezing rain closes WCH, MT schools

Students enjoy 'holiday on ice'

Freezing rains Thursday and 20-degree temperatures overnight closed Fayette County and Washington C.H. schools Friday and postponed both area basketball games.

Students in Washington C.H. can enjoy their "holiday on ice" much more students in the Miami Trace School District, however.

This is only the second day of cancelled classes in Washington C.H. The Miami Trace schools had already exceeded the five-day annual closing limit, and an additional day of classes will have to be scheduled in June. Friday marked the seventh day of winter closing for county elementary students and the sixth for Miami Trace High School, which will have to schedule two "extra" days of classes.

Both high schools had basketball contests scheduled at home tonight, and both have been postponed until Saturday night, weather permitting. Miami Trace will host league-leading Circleville, and the Blue Lions will meet Wilmington.

Junior high basketball games scheduled Thursday were cancelled. The county junior high circuit has had three playing dates washed out by weather, and the games will be rescheduled. One two-game slate will be played Monday night, but the other two dates have not been set.

Miami Trace School District Superintendent Guy M. Foster said,

WINTER OLYMPICS SITE? — What may appear to be a ski-jump runway receding from the right corner of the photograph is not a part of Innsbruck, Austria's sports environment. Actually, the scene is Main Street Friday morning after a freezing night time rain made all pavement surfaces extremely slick.

"the roads were so terrible there was no way we could operate."

Ice which began forming Thursday afternoon presented hazardous conditions for the return of students on Thursday. Three school buses slid off the icy pavement, but no injuries resulted, and only one bus incurred minor damage. Students residing in the Jeffersonville area did not arrive home until as late as 7 p.m.

Washington C.H. School District superintendent Edwin M. Nestor said that while the mainstreets in Washington C.H. were clear, side streets remained hazardous. He also noted that icy sidewalks presented a serious hazard to students who walk to school.

Patty 'foul-mouthed bank robber'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After twice watching a twominute film of herself totting a rifle at a bank robbery, Patricia Hearst listened quietly as a witness recalled "looking right down the barrel" of her sawedoff carbine and falling to the floor in fear.

James Norton, a recreational therapist, testified Thursday that Miss Hearst was a peppery, foul-mouthed desperado who was the first one in the bank the day of the robbery.

Norton, called to the stand by U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., was scheduled to undergo cross-examination today, and chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said it would be "lengthy."

Norton was the second witness to testify Thursday that the newspaper heiress shouted obscenities when she and four Symbionese Liberation Army members held up the Hibernia Bank here April 15, 1974, two months after the tiny band of terrorists kidnaped her.

Norton said he was about to deposit a check when Miss Hearst burst through the front door of the bank and pointed a carbine at him.

Avoiding a profanity he said he heard Miss Hearst utter, Norton quoted her as saying: "Get on the ground, or I'll blow your dash head off, your brains out, or something like that."

"By then, I was on my way to the floor."

He said he was the last one to fall to the floor because he initially thought it was a staged holdup for a television show. His comment drew laughter from the spectators, and U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver J. Carter sternly reprimanded the audience for laughing.

Browning held up a brownbarreled military carbine and asked if it was similar to the one used by Miss Hearst. Norton replied that it was.

The highlight of the first day of testimony was the showing of a two-

Services set for arthritis victims

A new organization has been established to aid Fayette County residents suffering from arthritis.

At a recent meeting in Columbus of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the Central Ohio Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, Mrs. William C. (Alice) Malone was named as the new chairman of the recently-formed Fayette County volunteer branch. She is pictured (middle) with Mrs. William M. Dillon (left), one of the Assistant

Committees were recently established to begin to provide services to the people of Fayette County. The public information committee is in the process of distributing literature on arthritis. These will become available in various locations such as in local pharmacies, physicians' offices, Fayette County Memorial Hospital and the Fayette County Health Department, or they can be obtained by contacting the foundation at 910 Lakeview Avenue in Washington C. H. (335-2487). Included in the literature is basic factual information on arthritis, specific booklets on rheumatoid and osteo-arthritis, and pamphlets on other types of related diseases such as gout, as well as home care manuals, quackery information, and handbooks and manuals for health professionals.

An equipment loan program is being planned by the patient and community services committee to provide articles needed by arthritis patients as requested by their physicians. These include special walking devices (canes, crutches, walkers, etc.), therapeutic exercise equipment, grooming and feeding devices, wheelchairs, and other equipment for special cases — all on loan at no charge to the patient.

Other services currently available are lists of arthritis specialists and clinics in central Ohio; speakers, films, and exhibits on arthritis for local service organization and club programs, patient counseling. In the planning stages are a public forum on arthritis, medical and allied medical seminars, and home care and friendly visitor programs.

The Central Ohio chapter serves a 25-county area. The Arthritis Foundation is the only national voluntary health organization dedicated solely to combatting arthritis, the nation's number one crippling disease. It seriously affects over 20 million Americans and results in 3.5 billion dollars in lost wages annually. It can strike the elderly and the young alike and causes over 14 million days lost from work each year.

More volunteers are needed in the Fayette County branch organization to help in the programs. Mrs. Malone asks interested persons to call her at 335-2487. Patients who wish more information about the Foundation's services are also urged to call Mrs. Malone or members of the patient and community services committee at 437-7569 or 437-7808. The next meeting, open to the public, will be on Thursday, February 12 at 8 p.m. at Court House Manor Nursing Home on Glenn Avenue.

A coat of tar and feathers and a ride out of town on a sharp-edged fence rail was the usual punishment for the theft of grain or a horse in Ohio's pioneer days.

Opinion And Comment

Thank you, tooth fairy

One criticism guaranteed to set public school teachers' teeth on edge is the charge so often made that they put in a lot shorter working hours than most of us. As teachers hasten to note when chivvied about the matter, teaching is not all that teachers do.

Recently a newspaper letter writer opined that teachers work only six hours and 20 minutes a day. The response was brisk and voluminous.

Our favorite reply was from a teacher who said "a squad of sympathetic elves" helped him get by: "While I teach, they keep records, plan lessons, fill out forms, design tests, and blueprint learning strategies for students who need special help." But then who "reads, evaluates, and grades the many papers that I carry home at the end of my 'six hours and 20 minutes' teaching day? Why, the Tooth Fairy, of course." So much for short days in the teaching game.

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

How do we educate presidents for war?

Nobody wants to think about Vietnam any more, which is too bad for Gen. William C. Westmoreland, whose new book, "A Soldier Reports," is filled with a thousand sober questions about war and peace that ought to be of major concern in an election year but just aren't.

We pay a terrible price when we elect a president who is absolutely innocent of any basic knowledge of what it takes to win a war in the field. Gen. Westmoreland is a respectful man who firmly believes in the constitutional duty of a field commander to obey the orders of the civilian head of government. Yet, though he does not say so in so many words, it is quite apparent that the dutiful "Westy," who headed our forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968 and came home to serve as Chief of Staff until 1972, regards Lyndon Johnson as a total disaster as a civilian-trained Commander-in-Chief. The most he can say for Johnson is that he "no doubt did his best; it was perhaps a situation beyond the mastery of any man."

Westmoreland, no fatalist, doesn't really believe in his excuses for LBJ as a war leader. He thinks the whole business about "graduated response" was idiotic. As he puts it, "Bomb a little bit, stop it a while to give the enemy a chance to cry uncle, then bomb a little bit more but never enough to really hurt. That was no way to win."

Westmoreland's book is eloquent in its recital of the "might have beens." We could have severed our commitment to South Vietnam with honor between 1961 and 1965, when "the lack of cohesiveness in the nation's heterogeneous society became clearly evident."

But John F. Kennedy, after his disconcerting meeting with Khrushchev in Vienna in 1961, felt he had to make a strong stand against Communism somewhere in the world. Once we were "in" a shooting war for the duration, we should have gone for the North Vietnamese jugular.

Even with the handicap of graduated response, says Westmoreland, we had our chances. But it was not in LBJ's character to seize opportunity when we had it.

The war, says Westmoreland, could have been brought to a favorable end following the defeat of the enemy's Tet offensive in 1968. We had what Westmoreland calls the finest military force ever assembled. The general's words about the misuse of that force are quietly anguished.

"Had President Johnson changed our strategy and taken advantage of the enemy's weakness to enable me to carry out the operations we had planned over the preceding two years in Laos and Cambodia and north of the DMZ, along with intensified bombing and the mining of Haiphong Harbor, the North Vietnamese doubtlessly would have broken. But it was not to be. Press and television had created an aura not of victory but of defeat. . . It was like two boxers in a ring, one having the other on the ropes, close to a knockout, when the apparent winner's second inexplicably throws in the towel."

There were other failures in addition to the unwillingness in Washington to exploit Tet. We waited too long for incursions into Laos and Cambodia. We failed to demonstrate to the North Vietnamese that they were vulnerable just north of the DMZ. Above all, the president, obsessed with his Great Society image, failed to level with the people about the nature of the sacrifices that were needed to win even the smallest of wars. In all honor he should have gone to Congress periodically for reaffirmations of the Gulf of Tonkin resolution.

Nixon, in Westmoreland's estimation, understood the application of power in war much better than Johnson. But Watergate dragged Nixon down, thus assuring that South Vietnam would be thrown to the wolves. Ironically, this happened after Nixon's diplomacy had already forestalled the possibility that the Red Chinese would enter the war if we had stayed with South Vietnam to the end.

One reads Westmoreland's indictment of LBJ - for that is what it is - with a mournful wish that one could know how a Morris Udall, or a Birch Bayh, or a Sargent Shriver, or a Jimmy Carter or a Fred Harris (the roster of Democrats scrapping for New Hampshire) would have acted in Johnson's shoes. One feels more certain about a Henry Jackson or a George Wallace, who are not contesting New Hampshire.

This is one reason why New Hampshire will define little for the Democrats. The test for character in the ultimate issues of defending the Republic is just not there.

CES halts new hiring

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rising costs combined with budget restrictions have forced Ohio State University's Cooperative Extension Service to halt hiring and cut travel 19 per cent to avoid cutting educational programs.

"We are hurting, but we're doing the best we can..." said Roy M. Kottman, extension director.

The extension is holding 26 of about 400 faculty positions vacant, and administrators expect 24 more vacancies within the next year. That will mean 50 vacancies by the end of the biennium, Kottman said.

To meet the travel cutback, faculty members are staying in the office writing bulletins or preparing slides, radio tapes or television films for mass audiences.

The extension also will hire 90 per cent less part-time help and allocated 20 per cent less money to supplies, equipment and utility costs, Kottman said.

Ohio participates in placement plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has completed all necessary details for full participation in the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, the state Department of Public Welfare announced.

Director Raymond F. McKenna said Ohio was the 34th state to join the compact as of Jan. 1. Membership was provided by a bill adopted by the legislature last year, he said.

McKenna also announced that department employe Jean Kleinschmidt has been named deputy compact administrator for the state.

Ohio Perspective

State industrial growth seen

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Slower but still steady industrial growth for northern Ohio has been forecast by an international consulting firm hired to determine the area's power needs.

Arthur D. Little Inc., in a power demand forecast prepared for the Ohio Power Siting Commission, said the stable nature of northern Ohio's industry will preclude rapid growth and expansion.

But, the firm said, that same stable nature should provide for a slow, steady increase through the 1980s.

The study was done on the area of Ohio served by the Central Area Power Coordination Group (CAPCO), an interlocking grid comprising the Toledo Edison Co., Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., Duquesne Light Co., Ohio Edison Co. and Pennsylvania Power Co.

CAPCO provides electrical power for the northern tier of Ohio counties, part of northwest and western Ohio and extreme western Pennsylvania.

The demand forecast is used by the commission to determine whether it should allow the construction of new generating plants or transmission lines.

In its forecast, the Little firm predicted slow growth for most industry within the CAPCO area, but a slower rate of growth than that of the nation as a whole.

"The establishment of industries in northern Ohio during the past decades has resulted in an industrial composition which is not likely to yield rapid growth," Little said.

"There is a high degree of obsolescence of industrial equipment. Manufacturers are tending to locate new facilities closer to growing markets and in areas where labor unions are weaker."

The Little firm predicted that manufacturing industries would expand about 2.2 per cent annually through 1980, then at 2.4 per cent through 1988. Expansion was at 2.4 per cent from 1964 to 1974, the firm said.

Little said the relative decline through 1980 would occur during a transitional period, during which industry would invest in new facilities and reorient itself toward faster growing markets.

"However, we predict renewed growth during the 1980s, not a continuing decline," the firm said. "The benefits of maturity lie in the diversity of skills and supplies available."

"Given some modernization of equipment and facilities, and some industrial reorientation, the area's economy will again grow steadily in our view," the firm concluded.

Yesterday's Cryptquote: NO MAN SHOULD THINK HIMSELF A ZERO AND THINK HE CAN DO NOTHING ABOUT THE STATE OF THE WORLD. — BERNARD M. BARUCH

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The bosses meet with 'surprise' welcome

DEAR ABBY: Before Christmas my husband phoned me from the office to say he was bringing home a surprise for me and that I should fix a pitcher of martinis. I was so sure he was bringing home the earrings I wanted for Christmas that I prepared the martinis, got myself all prettied up, minus my clothes, laid down on the living room sofa and waited for him.

Well the door opened and in came my husband with his two bosses! I was so stunned I just laid there. My husband immediately threw me his coat jacket. I guess I should have put it on, but instead I held it in front of me and ran out of the room, leaving my backside exposed.

The two men left immediately, and my husband was furious. I refused to go to the Christmas party because I couldn't face those two bosses. My husband hasn't had anything to do with me since. Can you help me?

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: You have more reason to be furious with your husband than he has to be furious with you. If that's the "worst" surprise a husband ever has when he comes home from work, he's lucky. I think you should both forget it.

DEAR ABBY: My question isn't exactly earth-shaking, but I need an answer. I am a happily married woman and want to have my ears pierced, but my husband has forbidden me to do so. He won't give me a reason; he just says he doesn't want me to do it.

Abby, I want very much to pierce my ears. I enjoy wearing earrings, and if I screw them on tight enough to stay on, after a while my ears hurt so much I have to remove them. And if I screw them on so they'll be comfortable, invariably I lose one or both. Pierced ears would eliminate this problem.

Does my husband have the right to dictate what I should do with my body?

LOVING WIFE

DEAR WIFE: No one has the "right" to dictate what another shall do with his (or her) body. If you want to comply with your husband's request, fine-but he has no "right" to demand it.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my daughter was married at a church wedding, which was followed by a sit-down dinner and reception.

A shirt-tail relative whom we rarely see socially asked to be invited, so we invited her.

She and her husband attended the wedding, dinner and reception, but they didn't send a gift.

It's been six months and still no gift from them. I have run into her accidentally several times, and she slays says, "I'm going to send that wedding gift soon."

If she says it again, how should I handle it?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: What's to handle? A gift is a gift-not an obligation. Forget it.

Self-study set with workshops

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 10-week self-study course for Ohioans interested in strengthening industrial development in their communities will begin Feb. 16, state Development Director James A. Duerk announced Wednesday.

The program, designed for communities of less than 50,000 persons, will end with a twoday workshop at Clark Technical College in Springfield.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Watch your budget now. Don't go beyond limits until a pending financial matter definitely settled. It COULD go differently than you expect.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

A better day for your interests than you may realize. Waste no time getting started, but don't drive through, indifferent to the reactions of others.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

You may need a little extra push to put over pet projects now, but with your know-how and good judgment, you should be able to overcome minor obstacles.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Be prepared for competition, opposition to your plans. If aware that these exist, you can start the day with the premise that you CAN manage them - and you will!

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

A day in which the Leoite should shine! Now's the time to capitalize on your top-flight ideas; to add the novel twist that boots your project to the finish line.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

You may find some real values in seemingly unimportant offerings. Don't dismiss lightly. Neither make changes in matters now running smoothly.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

If any of your plans have been blocked lately, THIS is the time to try again. Study new trends as you will soon play an active role in an unexpected situation.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Some tricky circumstances to handle: Don't leave anything to chance. Look for some unexpected - and pleasant - news in a personal matter.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Being in the right place at the right time could be the key to a new opportunity or an adventuresome experience on this highly stimulating day. Keep all senses alert.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You may hear some very careless talk. Be analytical and sift through all the wordage until you ring the bell of fact. Then, and only then, take any needed action.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Your impressions about certain acquaintances will be valid, but don't spread the word. Some information is best kept secret.

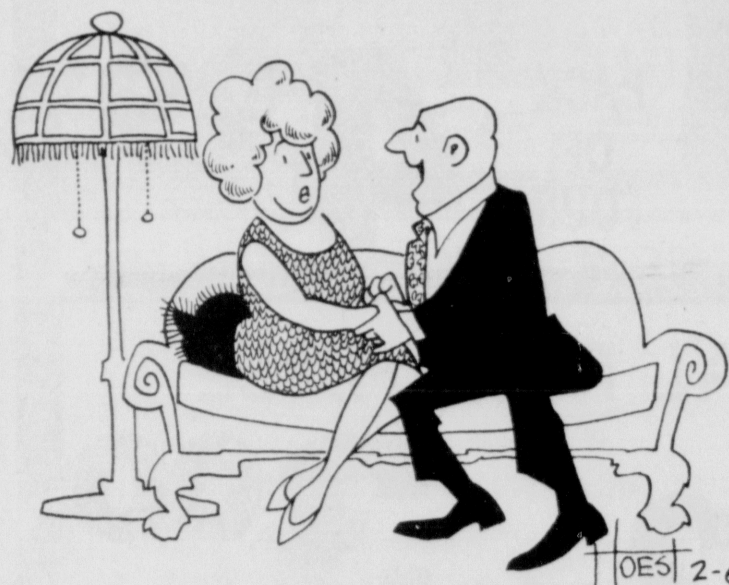

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Some misleading influences. Take no promises for granted. Get everything in writing and, above all, be cautious in dealing with strangers.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with many talents which should lead to a happy and successful life, but how you use them will tell the big story. Once the Aquarian learns self-mastery and composure, he can reach more than one noteworthy pinnacle of achievement. You have a fine spirit of enterprise and are full of enthusiasm about all your undertakings; would make an excellent writer, painter or editor.

Churches enter Plutonium Arena

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—A fateful choice, seen variously as offering either "untold good" or "incalculable evil" for humanity, currently is being argued among American religious and scientific thinkers.

Instead of dividing the two camps, however, it has drawn members of each into joint alliances, but on both sides of the issue, with philosophical jabs from scientists and theologians alike.

At stake is whether an energy-short world should turn to an immense, reproducible source of nuclear power, the byproduct plutonium that can be multiplied even as it is used, to boost continuing economic growth and a richer society.

It could mean a "Faustian bargain," says bioethics professor Margaret Maxey of the University of Detroit, referring to the storied Faust who made a deal with the devil for temporary delights eventuating in doom.

On the other hand, she adds, it could provide an unprecedented spur to a "new level of cultural evolution," bringing acceptance of "the imposition of a global commitment to a permanent, stable, more just social order."

The question was debated last week at a hearing by the National Council of Churches on a proposed statement by a panel of scientists, urging a U.S. moratorium — to allow more study — on programs to expand plutonium use in industry.

It would require a "technological paradise" of flawlessly arranged and universally heeded controls to prevent such expansion from poisoning the earth, said Nobel prize-winning physicist Hannes Alfvén of the University of California.

Observed biochemist John T. Edsall of Harvard University: "I'm unable to see such a degree of stability now or likely in the near future. It would demand a stability that has never existed."

If humanity became sensitized to the alternatives and was aware that maintaining the quality of their lives depended on it, "perhaps such a stable order would eventuate," Prof. Maxey said. "It's worth considering."

Nuclear engineer David J. Rose of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology said that "certainty is impossible in the real world," but the potential benefits justify the risks, which are part of any major advance.

Like several scientists, he occasionally cited Bible quotations to back his points. He noted that in Genesis 4:8, "Cain slew Abel, legend has it with the jawbone of an ass. God did not abolish jawbones, but still works to improve the descendants of Cain."

Christian ethicist Preston Williams of Harvard University Divinity School said contentions opposing expanded plutonium use "seem to rest on fears of people — fears of big government, big military policing, the big bomb."

'Moral goodness' given emphasis

NEW YORK (AP) — While condemning the modern erosion of sex standards, the new Roman Catholic declaration on sexual ethics emphasizes the importance of sexuality and the "moral goodness" of sexual union in marriage.

It adds that sex gives a person the biological, psychological and spiritual characteristics that "largely condition his or her progress toward maturity" and involvement in society.

This positive evaluation of sex, differing from older negative Church teachings about it, says that only respect for the definitive quality of sex "insures the moral goodness" of sexual intercourse in marriage.

That objective bond of union, and not mere sincere intentions, is essential for sexual acts to uphold "true human dignity" and to preserve the "full sense of mutual self-giving and human procreation in the context of true love," the declaration says.

Out of this high view of sex, the Church statement hits at the contemporary confusion, downgrading of sex standards and "widespread aberrant modes of behavior" that violate the "true moral exigencies of the human person."

The decline in sex morals is linked with "the loss of a sense of God," the statement says, and has been "engendered by the commercialization of vice, with the unrestrained licentiousness of so many public entertainments and publications, as well as with the neglect of modesty."

The corruption has infected education and the general mentality, says the analysis drawn up by Vatican office on sacred doctrine. It adds:

"Moral criteria and modes of living hitherto faithfully preserved have been very much unsettled, even among Christians. There are many people today who ... have come to wonder what they must still hold as true."

Singled out for specific censure were premarital sexual intercourse, homosexuality and masturbation.

Three nights of revivals set

A three night revival meeting has been scheduled to take place in the Immanuel Baptist Church, 1205 Leesburg Ave., at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 6, 7, and 8.

The meetings will be conducted by Darty Stowe, community director for the Southern Baptist State Convention of Ohio. During each night, Janet Duvall, founder and president of D.E.A.F. will be interpreting the sermon to those in the audience who are deaf.

Throughout the revival, nursery services will be provided, and on Saturday night Feb. 7 a group of 15 students from Cedar College will be present.

New village treasurer, council member seated

JEFFERSONVILLE — A new council member and a new treasurer were appointed Thursday night by

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Dayton Power and Light Company has filed an application with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio requesting authority to amend its interim gas curtailment plan by eliminating those provisions in the plan which permit the carry-over of unused volumes of gas from the winter period to the following summer period. A public hearing in this matter has been scheduled for Monday, February 23, 1976, at 10:00 A.M. at the Lobby Hearing Room of the State Office Tower, 30 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215. At said hearing, all parties of interest will have an opportunity to present evidence material to the issues of this proceeding. Further information may be obtained by addressing an inquiry to the Secretary of the Commission, 111 North High Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

THE PUBLIC UTILITIES
COMMISSION OF OHIO
Randall G. Applegate,
Secretary

members of the Jeffersonville village council.

Jeffersonville Mayor Gordon L. McCarty said Roger N. Snyder was appointed to village council seat to complete the unexpired term of Eldon McBee.

The term will be for two years. McBee resigned from the village council since he was transferred to Middletown.

Mrs. Fred Stires was appointed to the village treasurers position. Mrs. Stires will also hold the post of assistant council clerk. McCarty said Mrs. Stires was appointed since no one sought the office at the November general election.

IN OTHER matters, council members opened bids but postponed awarding a contract to one of three companies on two indebtedness bonds for the village. The bonds total $11,981.44 and the council will make a decision on the lowest bid during a special meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Council members approved six street lights to be erected on Woodview Drive at a cost of $43 each per year, and authorized safety-service director Lindy Sharrett to purchase a new snow plow at a cost of $1,600 and an $800 fogging machine for mosquitoes during the summer months.

Routine bills, totaling $3,183.58 for the month, were paid.

Scholar-athlete Baschnagel eyes pro football career

Noted for being a scholar as well as a football player, Ohio State University's Brian Baschnagel hopes to pursue a career in law, and he also wants to further his grid career in the National Football League.

The personable Buckeye wingback, who spoke Thursday night at the Fayette County Pork Producers banquet in the Mahan Building, said he has not been in direct contact with any pro teams, but he has been scouted.

"I'm looking forward to the draft," Baschnagel said. "I don't think they're looking at me as a specialized player, but as an athlete."

Baschnagel, who has been called Ohio State's most versatile back in years by head coach Woody Hayes, said he would play for any team that drafts him but that he prefers going to a team in the east. The native of Pittsburgh, Pa., added that he would like to enter law school in the near future. He just missed qualifying for a Rhodes Scholarship which would have entitled him to two years of study in Great Britain.

Baschnagel had nothing but praise for the Ohio State football program and its controversial coach Woody Hayes.

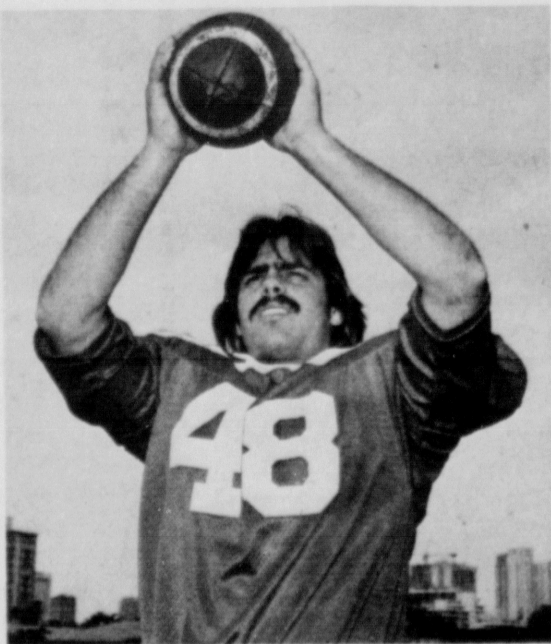

"Without him I wouldn't be anything," he said referring to the veteran Buckeye head coach. "He wants to get to know about his players. That's what makes him such a great coach."

Baschnagel admitted that he had reservations about coming to Ohio State four years ago after narrowing his choices down to OSU, Notre Dame and Penn State. But after one visit, he felt the rumors of Ohio State being a football factory were untrue.

"I met plenty of fantastic people and wherever I go I meet Ohio State alumni, who want to help me," he said.

The notoriety that comes with being a Buckeye has put Baschnagel in several funny situations. Earlier this year, he got a phone call from an admiring fan of about 11 or 12 years-old, who told him that he was a good football player and admired his pass-catching ability.

"I started to get a swelled head," Baschnagel said, but he asked the caller the reason for the conversation the boy said that he called to get Archie Griffin's phone number.

BRIAN BASCHNAGEL

Baschnagel said his most memorable moment at Ohio State besides being a four-year team member was the Buckeyes' 1972 Rose Bowl win over Southern California.

On the Woody Hayes — Nick Buonamici hassle that left the all-league defensive tackle suspended from the team, Baschnagel commented that he didn't know the reason for Hayes' action, but that he did know the two highly tempered men got into an argument before a team awards assembly.

Baschnagel said that the two parties have been talking things over lately and he feels Buonamici will be reinstated on the squad.

Fred Taylor quits as OSU cage pilot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fred Taylor abruptly announced his resignation as Ohio State basketball coach Thursday, evidently the climax of a long-running rift with Ed Weaver, the Big Ten Conference school's athletic director.

Neither of the principals would comment publicly on their feud. But both will admit privately it hastened the 52-year-old Taylor's departure as the dean of Big Ten coaches.

"It's been blown out of perspective. I don't know if it exists like some people think it does," Weaver said of his difficulties with the school's basketball coach of 18 years.

"I don't think Fred has been a happy man here for the last five years," admitted Weaver.

"My resignation was for personal reasons. It has nothing to do with the way we're playing or our won-lost record," said the man who has rolled out a 297-149 record, one national champion and two runners-up.

"I don't think Weaver knows it yet," Taylor told a sports writer shortly after he hand-delivered his letter of resignation to Dr. Harold Enarson, the Ohio State president.

The resignation is effective at the end of the season.

The coach told his squad after practice Thursday for invading Michigan State Saturday night. "I wanted them to know before anyone else. I just hope they play well the rest of the way," he said.

Athletic department officials also blame Taylor's recruiting failures, a 28-40 record in the last three seasons and dwindling home attendance for his departure.

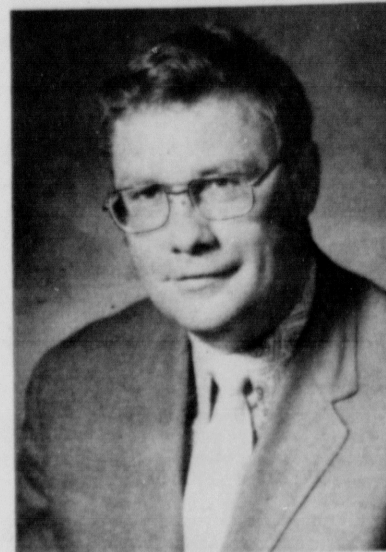

Taylor had landed only five first team Class AAA All-Ohio selections in the last four seasons. He lost such prizes as Scott May to Indiana, Phil Hubbard to Michigan and Mike Phillips to Kentucky.

"Fred is simply too honest," said of one of his associates.

Taylor's teams have not been Big Ten challengers since his 18-6 squad of four years ago. Attendance that year averaged 13,417. It was down to 8,454 last winter, even lower this season.

Taylor coached a conference record five straight basketball champions 1960 through 1964. But he pointed out, "only two in the last 13. That's wrong. However, lack of championships did not influence my decision."

Taylor and Weaver began to fall out four years ago after the game-ending brawl at Minnesota that sent three Buckeyes to the hospital. The coach thought he should have had better backing from his athletic director. He publicly said so.

Then, the following year, Taylor almost took the Northwestern coaching job. He supposedly used it as a bargaining tool at Ohio State, a move that irked Weaver.

Winter Olympic report

Sheila Young wins skating gold

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Sheila Young of Detroit won the Olympic women's 500-meter speed skating race today, giving the United States its first gold medal in the 12th Winter Games.

Cathy Priestner of Canada won the silver and Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union took the bronze. Miss Young, who had captured the silver medal Thursday in the women's 1,500 meters, won the 500 in an Olympic-record 42.76. She holds the 500 world record of 40.91 seconds, set a week ago in Davos, Switzerland.

Miss Young, an athletic 25-year-old from Detroit, who said she "wasn't really expecting a medal," struck a surprising silver in the 1,500-meter speedskating event Thursday. Koch, of Guilford Vt., whose goal was finishing in the top 10, wound up No. 2 to win the silver medal in the 30-kilometer (18.6-mile) cross-country ski event.

Klammer, needing a reckless performance in the bottom half of the treacherous downhill, the Games' glamour event, flashed to victory over defending Olympic champion Bernhard Russi of Switzerland by .67 seconds.

Miss Young went after the gold medal today in her specialty, the 500 meters. The 20-year-old Koch gets two day's rest before tackling the second of his four events, Sunday's 15-kilometer (15.5-mile) race.

With Miss Young, world record holder in the 500, and fellow speed skater Leah Poulos of Northbrook, Ill., rest America's sole hopes for medals in today's competition. The biathlon will be the only other event providing awards today. That sport, combining cross-country skiing and rifle marksmanship, is not an American specialty.

Also scheduled for today is the third of four runs in both the men's and women's luge, which awards medals after the final runs on Saturday, and the first two runs of the two-man bobsled.

After the midway point in the luge, East and West Germany were staging a battle for supremacy on the icy course. Detlef Genter of East Germany led the men's singles, less than one-fifth of a second in front of Josef Fendt of West Germany. Monika Schefstschck of West Germany assumed the lead in the women's event over favored Uta Ruehrold of East Germany.

The United States' ice hockey team

attempts to succeed today where the best of the National Hockey League failed, when the Americans meet the overwhelmingly favored Russians, who logged a 5-2-1 record against the best the NHL had to offer last month.

In other Group A matches, Poland meets West Germany and Czechoslovakia, expected to finish second, faces Finland in the double-elimination tournament.

The only pressure on the two American silver medalists was self-imposed since they weren't favored and their country wasn't overly concerned with their fate. On the other hand, riding on the handsome Klammer's broad shoulders was the fierce skiing pride of the home nation and the winter sports industry it holds so dear.

Fayette County games postponed

Ice moves tilts to Saturday

By PHIL LEWIS

Record-Herald Sports Editor

All four South Central Ohio League contests which were scheduled for tonight have been postponed due to the weather.

Both the Miami Trace-Circleville and the Washington C.H.-Wilmington contests have been rescheduled for Saturday night with 6:30 reserve-game starting times.

The Hillsboro-Madison Plains game has also been postponed. Officials at both Greenfield McClain and Unioto High schools could not be reached to confirm the canceling of that contest, but neither school held classes today.

CIRCLEVILLE AT MIAMI TRACE

The Panthers along with the

Washington C.H. Blue Lions are the only remaining league teams challenging Circleville for the league title, and the Court House hopes ride with Miami Trace.

A Panther loss will all but wrap up the SCOL crown for the defending champion Tigers.

Circleville won the first Panther-Tiger contest going away earlier this season, but Miami Trace has been tough at home having lost only two games—both non-league—this season on their home floor.

The Panthers have been getting a more balanced scoring attack of late which could severely hamper the Tiger's strongest weapon—defense. Art Schlichter has come around to be the Panthers' key scorer in the last couple of outings to support an already high-scoring starting five. With the exception of the Panther center position which is being shared by three players, the Miami Trace starting five are all averaging in double figures.

The Panthers do have one problem—an injury to leading scorer Allan Conner. If the Panther forward is ready to go at game time, Circleville could have problems.

WILMINGTON AT WASHINGTON

The Blue Lions will be out to avenge an early season loss to the Hurricane, and the way the Wilmington squad has been playing lately Washington C.H. may have an easy time.

Wilmington has lost its last three league contests turning a once title-contending team into a spoiler. The Blue Lions on the other hand are riding high having won five of their last six outings.

Washington C.H. can't afford to take the Hurricane lightly, however. One more loss will all but ruin the Blue Lions title hopes.

A Blue Lion win coupled with a Circleville loss will put the pressure on both Washington C.H. and Miami Trace when they meet for the second time this season on Tuesday night.

HILLSBORO AT MADISON PLAINS

The Indians have the unsavory task of meeting the Golden Eagles at Madison Plains High School which has been the downfall for every league team this season with the exception of Washington C.H.

Madison Plains topped the Indians at Hillsboro earlier this season and the Golden Eagles should have an easier time Saturday night.

GREENFIELD AT UNIOTO

The McClain bench should get ready to see plenty of action at Unioto, because if the starters stay in for more than two periods things could become very embarrassing for the Shermans.

That's not to say that the Tanks winless season hasn't already been embarrassing.

SCOL standings

	League	Overall
Circleville	9-1	12-1
Washington C. H.	7-3	9-4

Allin takes Hope golf lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Up until now," Billy Casper said, "it looked like a pretty good day for the old guys."

Casper made the observation when Buddy Allin came ambling in with a 68 and the second-round lead in the $180,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic with a seven-under-par 135 total.

That took an edge — just a tiny edge — off the excitement created by the record runs of Casper, 44, and Arnold Palmer, 46, winners of a combined 112 tour titles.

Palmer, who scored his last American victory in this tournament three long years ago, one-putted 10 times on his way to an eight-under-par 64, his best round in years.

And Casper played his back nine in 29 strokes, the best on the tour this season, on the way to a 65.

"It's kind of interesting," said Casper. "I don't ever remember shooting a 29 before. And I had to wait until my 21st year to do it."

"I felt like I was going to make it every time I got the putter in my hand," said the obviously-delighted Palmer, who used only 26 strokes on the greens. "I can't remember the last time I had a putting round like that."

Casper's seven-under-par effort left him in second place.

Sports briefs

Biff Bumgarner signs with BGSU

Biff Bumgarner, Circleville's versatile athlete, has signed a letter of intent to attend Bowling Green State University on a football scholarship.

Bumgarner, a first-team all-Ohio running back, must now attend BGSU if he plans to participate in the Mid American Conference.

However, he has until Feb. 18 to make his final decision. That's the date that national letter of intents come out binding a player to one college. Until that time, he will be eligible to sign with any team outside the MAC.

Bowling Green coach Dale Strahm said, "Bumgarner is one of the premier running backs in the state of Ohio and we are extremely pleased to have him in our camp."

Mrs. Punctuation wins Latonia feature

LATONIA, Ky. (AP) — Mr. Punctuation claimed his second victory in three starts this year with a wire-to-wire four-length triumph in the featured thoroughbred race at Latonia Thursday night.

The winner went the six and a half furlongs in 1:20 to return $7.40, $3.80 and $2.20. Dart Boy, second, paid $4.80 and $2.40. Deleterious was the show horse at $2.20.

The 10-9 combination of Tropical Michelle and Cast Phar returned $83.60 in the daily double.

A crowd of 2,842 wagered $316,203.

Matt Surina leads PBA tournament

CLEVELAND (AP) — Despite winning only three games, Matt Surina of Longview, Wash., clung to his lead after the first round of match play Thursday night in the Professional Bowlers Association's $65,000 Cleveland Open tournament.

Surina had a total pinfall for 26 games of 6,040 for a 35-pin lead over Tommy Hudson of Akron, Ohio at 6,005. Following them in the top five were Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., 5,966; Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., 5,936, and Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., 5,864.

Eastwick named newcomer of year

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rookie relief pitcher Rawly Eastwick was selected as the Newcomer of the Year of the World Champion Cincinnati Reds by the Cincinnati Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Eastwick tied for the National League lead in saves with 22, won one and saved another in the Championship Series and had two victories and a save in the World Series against the Boston Red Sox.

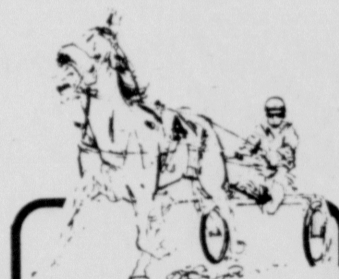

Eastwick joined the Reds May 20 after being called up from the Indianapolis Indians of the American Association.

Richie McCabe quits as Browns coach

CLEVELAND (AP)—Richie McCabe has resigned as defensive coordinator for the Cleveland Browns.

Head Coach Forrest Gregg said Monday McCabe, 41, told him he had no definite plans at this time but felt it was best for himself and the Browns to leave the coaching staff.

A Browns' spokesman said the resignation was entirely voluntary and no pressure was put on McCabe.

FAYETTE COUNTY'S LEADING APPLIANCE STORE

By BILL VALE
Associated Press Writer
NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — The bride on the cake wore white. The real bride wore a white tulle veil and a white garter.

The bridesmaids wore fading tans and the police outside wore mock stern expressions, as the Northern Kentucky city once proclaimed "Sin City," hosted a nude wedding to boost its nightclub business.

"I'll never do this again, I almost froze to death," said the best man, Bill Cottrell, 22, a senior at Ohio State University.

Stripper Linda Brigett, who said she was 28, her real name is Lambert, married Joe Krosclair, 27, at the Newport nightclub Thursday afternoon. Both said they are from New Orleans, La.

The bride, groom, best man, an usher who gave the bride away, and bridesmaids were all in the nude for the ceremony.

"I'm too old," said Justice of the Peace Earl Leonard, who performed the ceremony in a gray suit. He was also the first one out the front door after the ceremony when the doors were unlocked to let the police in.

Business news

BALTIMORE, Md. — Robert E. Owen, 1272 Dayton Ave. has been appointed association-consumer sales representative for the Ohio operations of Commercial Credit Services Corp., the newly-created sales arm of the Commercial Credit Co., Baltimore, Md.

The announcement was made by Eugene S. Sirbaugh, president of the Commercial Credit Services Corp. Owen was formerly a district supervisor in Washington C. H., servicing the southwest area for the City Loan and Savings Co., Commercial Credit's consumer finance subsidiary in Ohio.

Owen will be offering a variety of finance, insurance, education and computer-based services to trade and professional associations throughout Ohio.

Owen, 40, holds a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Youngstown State University. He joined the City Loan and Savings Co. in 1958, working out of its Youngstown

"I couldn't refuse to marry them," Leonard explained. "They could sue me."

"I have no comment," said Detective Walter Cylkovski, looking wide eyed and grim. Neither he nor Sgt. Ron Collins saw the nudity and so, could not file charges.

"Nobody heard us knocking on the front window," lamented the officer.

The wedding was arranged by one of the bridesmaids, stripper Morgana Roberts, who gained national attention during the 1970 World Series when she ran onto the field to kiss Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench. She was dragged off before reaching him.

Final preparations for the staged ceremony, were explained by Sparky Blaine, Morgana's manager.

"Okay, put film in the cameras, put out the cigars and keep your dirty remarks to yourself," he told newsmen and local observers. There were only two unidentified women among the invited guests.

"Here Comes the Bride" blared over the nightclub loudspeakers as Candy Mann, the flower girl, and Morgana, the other witness, wiggled slowly the length of the club to the stage.

"I'd recommend this for everybody," office. In 1969, he transferred to East Liverpool as branch manager, where, under his supervision, the branch became the largest personal loan office in the state. In 1973, he was named chairman of the City Loan's "Millionaire Club" in recognition of his office having the largest dollar gain for that year.

Commercial Credit Co. is the $4 billion (assets) financial services arm of Control Data Corp., of Minneapolis, Minn., and through its own subsidiaries, offers consumer financing and lending, business financing, leasing and insurance services throughout the United States, Canada, Europe and in the Far East.

PANEL MODERATOR

George H. Walker, 534 Damon Drive, central region manager of the Agrico Chemical Co., Washington C. H., will attend the 97th annual meeting of the Ohio Grain, Feed and Fertilizer Association Feb. 9-11 in Toledo.

Walker will serve as moderator of the fertilizer session on Feb. 9 He has served as chairman of the fertilizer committee for the Ohio Grain, Feed and Fertilizer Association during the past year.

Topics to be covered at the meeting include the proposed grain grading changes, the revised regulations on delayed price grain contracts, and the Environmental Protection Agency's plans for grain dryer operations.

Robert Lawrence, of Fayette Landmark, Inc., in Washington C. H. will also be attending the meeting.

said the bride, especially for those in the stripping business. "I was shaking because I was nervous about getting married."

"I flew down from New York," said Candy Mann, as the entire party remained nude on the stage for lengthy interviews before news cameras. "Morgana has a real knack for publicity."

Blaine told the party to go dress for the reception. After that they let the cops in.

"Let's see if you can get this on the 6 o'clock news," challenged Morgana, waiving her bouquet in the air.

"They're roses and daisies," she said, when asked what kind of flowers she was holding. "What do you think we have here in Newport—falsies?"

Two vehicle fires and eight building fires were fought by Washington C.H. firemen during the month of January, according to the monthly report submitted by Washington C.H. Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen.

Three persons were reported injured in blazes.

Chief Denen stated an average of 8.96 regular and volunteer firefighters reported to the scenes of city fires and a total of 5.5 reported for fire runs in Union Township.

Firemen also participated in two inhalator calls, one emergency medical call, four carbon monoxide checks and six gas leak or gas spill checks. Four smoke scares were phoned into the fire department which turned out not to be fires.

Total loss due to fires during the month of January, 1976 was estimated by Chief Denen to be around $1,940.

Other activities the department engaged in during the month included tours, demonstrations, safety meetings and training for fire department members.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department pistol team has started the 1976 season out in true form.

Auxiliary Deputy Jerry Coffey has shown his mastery of the .45-caliber and .22-caliber automatics by capturing five trophies in the last three bullseye pistol matches he has entered.

Auxiliary Deputy Alan Yeoman and regular Deputy Robert A. Russell won engraved pewter mugs for third place in the expert class at Cincinnati last weekend. The combat pistol match drew 225 competitors from the tri-state area and lasted three days.

The Cincinnati combat match allowed civilian shooters to compete, if a guest of a police pistol team. Hubert Ferneau was the guest of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department pistol team and showed he could hold his own by winning an engraved pewter mug for third place in the marksman guest class. Ferneau has done all the custom pistol-smithing for the county pistol team. Deputies Yeoman, Russell, and Coffey have contributed much of their success to Ferneau's work on their target pistols.

Last year the Fayette County Sheriff's pistol team tied with Montgomery County for second best in the state among all Ohio sheriff's departments.

MADISON MILLS — A brief meeting of the Madison Mills Elementary School Parent-Teacher Organization was held Tuesday.

Two fund-raising events were discussed. Mrs. Dorothy Bihl, chairman of the annual PTO fair, said the event will be held March 27. She reported initial plans for the project are now underway.

On Feb. 24, a skating party will be held at Roller Haven.

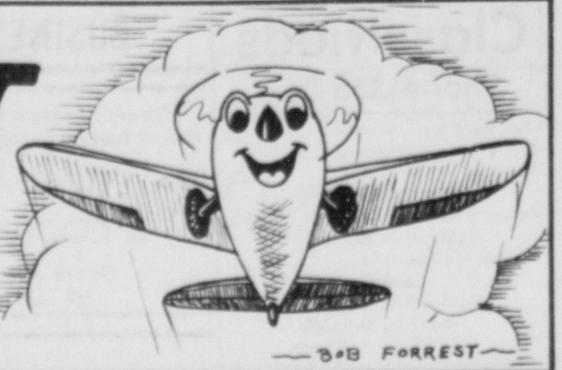

Secretary's and treasurer's reports were read before the meeting was adjourned.

THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF A FINE OLDER HOME!

The Bicentennial year is upon us and home buying people have become aware of our heritage and there has been a trend to buying older homes. There are advantages too, especially when it's the home that we are offering today, that is located in one of the prime locations in Washington, has all the features of a new home with updated wiring, wall to wall carpeting, new tasteful decorating inside and out but still remaining is the traditional oak woodwork, trim and doors that gives that warm and authentic appearance. But best of all is the spaciousness this home offers with its four bedrooms, living room, formal dining room, family room, kitchen and 1 1/2 baths. The little extras such as the large walk-in closets, the front and rear stairway, the fireplace, entrance foyer, the dry basement makes this house a home that you and your family will enjoy for years to come and yet it's priced at only $42,500.00.

Hepatitis breaks out

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Health Commissioner Arnold Leff, under fire for not notifying parents of an outbreak of hepatitis in suburban Oakley, defended the action, stating it posed no serious threat to the community.

Leff announced Thursday that 14 cases of the liver disease have surfaced at Oakley Elementary School since Monday.

The disclosure set off a wave of anger among parents who were not informed of the outbreak.

Glenn Hendricks, an assistant city school superintendent, said the school "acted on the advice of the health department and we didn't want to alarm parents needlessly."

Leff said the outbreak is not "an epidemic or anything uncontrollable."

A 17-year-old Fayette County girl was arrested by Washington C. H. police at 7:55 p.m. Thursday and charged with petty theft through shoplifting.

Police reported the girl allegedly attempted to leave the Kroger food store, 548 Clinton Ave., with two packs of polaroid film valued at $1.76 concealed in her purse. The girls has been released to the custody of her parents.

City police also reported offense incidents concerning larceny and criminal mischief. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported an incident of vandalism in which an area man was arrested.

Recent adjustments to new law involve athletic programs

City, county schools 'few steps ahead' in elimination of sex bias

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Staff Writer

While many Ohio secondary schools are planning to revamp policies to comply with the 1972 anti-sex discrimination amendment, Miami Trace and Washington C.H. school superintendents agree that they are a few steps ahead in eliminating sex bias.

All federally funded schools should be undergoing a self-examination period this year to study current practices and to plan for program revisions to bring them in compliance with Title IX—the part of the amendment designed to eliminate sex discrimination in schools.

Several of the major points of Title IX which would apply to Fayette

County and Washington C.H. schools are:

—All classes will have to be open to members of both sexes with the exception of classes dealing with human sexuality;

—Physical education classes must become co-educational and girls athletics must get equal opportunities and facilities;

—Guidance counselors must guard against steering students to traditional male-female classes or occupations; and —Pregnant students will no longer be required to go into programs separate from the regular classroom.

"We are probably a few steps ahead of some schools in complying to Title IX," said Washington C.H. School Superintendent Edwin M.

Nestor. "It didn't cause any furor here.

"We recognized before anything was mentioned about a Title IX that the girls weren't getting the proper attention," Nestor added.

According to Nestor, Washington C.H. schools have long abolished sex segregation in courses such as home economics and vocational studies. He said the more recent adjustments to the new law involve intrascholastic athletics.

"We now send girls teams by bus to games (involving softball, basketball, volleyball and track) and they receive financial support in our athletic program," he said.

Miami Trace School District Superintendent Guy Foster echoed Nestor's remarks.

"Vocational agriculture which was only for boys switched to co-educational several years ago. The same with family living and home economics which was only for girls," Foster said.

He also agrees with Nestor that the more recent programs to eliminate sex discrimination are in athletics.

"We have tried to extend possibilities for girls in athletics. This year we have a girls' track team," he said.

"As we understand it you either have to have a girls track team or combine girls and boys into one track team," Foster added.

The one problem with the recent organization of girls teams in both schools has been financial. Girls sports are not supporting programs yet putting the cost burden on the schools' male football and basketball programs.

"We're not making a fuss. We feel the whole school should benefit from the football proceeds," the Miami Trace School District superintendent said. "Our athletic department has never operated at a loss and this (recent cost burden) concerns us."

The period of self-analysis for each school is scheduled to end July 21 when federally-funded schools must begin to make Title IX effective and applicable.

Both school superintendents cannot see any big problems left in complying to the rules.

Public schools have also been required to adopt a policy stating their intentions to abide by the new law, appoint someone as coordinator for Title IX compliance, and establish a grievance procedure for staff and students, who have complaints about Title IX violations.

Both the Fayette County Board of Education and the Washington C.H. Board of Education have already adopted the compliance policy and both school districts have coordinators.

Assistant high school principal Tom Rankin will overlook Title IX compliance programs at Washington C.H. schools and Foster will handle the duties in Miami Trace district.

"If there are any concerns that sex discrimination has occurred, I'd be happy to listen to the argument or complaint," Foster said.

Kirks still 'satisfactory'

Home fire injuries fatal to utility company worker

A Dayton Power and Light Co. employee died Thursday from injuries he suffered in an explosion and fire at a Washington C.H. home where he was working.

Dale R. Dawes, 45, Rt. 1, Washington C.H., an employee of the Dayton Power and Light Co. for the past 16 years, died at 7:15 p.m. Thursday in University Hospital, Columbus.

Dawes was checking on an apparent gas leak Wednesday night in the basement of the James Kirk residence, 908 Lincoln Drive, when the explosion occurred.

The utilities company worker had suffered severe burns over 25 per cent of his body from the explosion and fire which occurred when a spark leaped from an electrical socket and caused gas within the home to explode.

Kirk, 35, his wife, Edith, 34, and a daughter, Tammy, 13, were injured in the fire. They are listed in "satisfactory" condition today at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Four Washington C.H. firemen also suffered minor injuries in the blaze.

The Kirk family reportedly got out of their home at 4 p.m. Wednesday after smelling natural gas in the home. A Dayton Power and Light Co. crew arrived to check the home to find the leak.

Officials said the Kirks returned home at 6 p.m. The family and Dawes were in the basement of the house when the explosion occurred. One of the Kirks' daughters, Kim, 16, was not at home at the time of the incident.

Firemen said the explosion blew out the walls of the one-story, ranch-style home and collapsed the roof. The fire followed.

A neighboring home owned by Leo B. Edwards, 902 Lincoln Drive, was damaged by the blast and fire.

Firemen estimated the loss to the Kirk home at $50,000 and $15,000 to the Edwards residence.

Born in Fayette County, Dawes had been employed by the Dayton Power and Light Co. district in Washington C.H. in 1959. He was a U.S. Army veteran, having served during the Korean War.

He is survived by his wife, the former Phyllis Teeters, whom he married Aug. 10, 1953; a daughter, Mrs. James (Cindy) Orebaugh, Rt. 1, Greenfield; a son, Philip, at home; a granddaughter, Jennifer Orebaugh; his father, Charles Dawes, of Greenfield; three brothers, Kenneth Dawes, of Good Hope, Delbert Dawes, of Springfield, and Charles Dawes, of Chillicothe, and a sister, Mrs. Carl (Wanda) Jinks, of Greenfield. He was preceded in death by his mother, two sisters and a brother.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday in the Murray Funeral Home, Greenfield, with the Rev. Noble Miller officiating. Burial will be in Good Hope Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 4 p.m. Sunday.

Nixons plan China visit

TOKYO (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon and his wife Pat have been invited to visit China beginning Feb. 21 and have accepted "with pleasure," the official Hsinhua news agency said today.

It said the visit will mark the fourth anniversary of the Nixons' first visit to China.

"The historic visit to China made by President Richard Nixon of the United States of America and Mrs. Nixon and the issuance of the joint communique by China and the United States in 1972 have played a significant role in improving Sino-U.S. relations," Hsinhua said.

"The Chinese side and former President Nixon both consider that a revisit to China by him will be appropriate. The government of the People's Republic of China has extended an invitation to him and Mrs. Nixon to revisit China on February 21, 1976, the fourth anniversary of their first visit. They have accepted the invitation with pleasure."

Barbara Walters of NBC's "Today" show quoted government sources in Washington as saying China plans to send a plane to pick up Nixon in California.

Nixon wasn't immediately available for comment.

NBC said an official of the Chinese mission to the United States visited the White House on Thursday to advise President Ford about the Nixon trip.

ICE ESCAPADES — Though the icy covering over roads and sidewalks closed all the area schools, some people chose to take advantage of its benefits, in spite of the fact that one might occasionally have to experience some

"hard" aspects of life. Connie Richards did not seem upset over the fact that her brother Tony was temporarily grounded.

Freezing rain closes WCH, MT schools

Students enjoy 'holiday on ice'

Freezing rains Thursday and 20-degree temperatures overnight closed Fayette County and Washington C.H. schools Friday and postponed both area basketball games.

Students in Washington C.H. can enjoy their "holiday on ice" much more students in the Miami Trace School District, however.

This is only the second day of cancelled classes in Washington C.H. The Miami Trace schools had already exceeded the five-day annual closing limit, and an additional day of classes will have to be scheduled in June. Friday marked the seventh day of winter closing for county elementary students and the sixth for Miami Trace High School, which will have to schedule two "extra" days of classes.

Both high schools had basketball contests scheduled at home tonight, and both have been postponed until Saturday night, weather permitting. Miami Trace will host league-leading Circleville, and the Blue Lions will meet Wilmington.

Junior high basketball games scheduled Thursday were cancelled. The county junior high circuit has had three playing dates washed out by weather, and the games will be rescheduled. One two-game slate will be played Monday night, but the other two dates have not been set.

Miami Trace School District Superintendent Guy M. Foster said,

Patty 'foul-mouthed bank robber'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After twice watching a twominute film of herself totting a rifle at a bank robbery, Patricia Hearst listened quietly as a witness recalled "looking right down the barrel" of her sawedoff carbine and falling to the floor in fear.

James Norton, a recreational therapist, testified Thursday that Miss Hearst was a peppery, foul-mouthed desperado who was the first one in the bank the day of the robbery.

Norton, called to the stand by U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., was scheduled to undergo cross-examination today, and chief defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said it would be "lengthy."

WINTER OLYMPICS SITE? — What may appear to be a ski-jump runway receding from the right corner of the photograph is not a part of Innsbruck, Austria's sports environment. Actually, the scene is Main Street Friday morning after a freezing night time rain made all pavement surfaces extremely slick.

"The roads were so terrible there was no way we could operate."

Ice which began forming Thursday afternoon presented hazardous conditions for the return of students on Thursday. Three school buses slid off the icy pavement, but no injuries resulted, and only one bus incurred minor damage. Students residing in the Jeffersonville area did not arrive home until as late as 7 p.m.

Washington C.H. School District superintendent Edwin M. Nestor said that while the mainstreets in Washington C.H. were clear, side streets remained hazardous. He also noted that icy sidewalks presented a serious hazard to students who walk to school.

"By then, I was on my way to the floor."

He said he was the last one to fall to the floor because he initially thought it was a staged holdup for a television show. His comment drew laughter from the spectators, and U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver J. Carter sternly reprimanded the audience for laughing.

Browning held up a brownbarreled military carbine and asked if it was similar to the one used by Miss Hearst. Norton replied that it was.

The highlight of the first day of testimony was the showing of a two-

Heart attack fells Judge John Sirica

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors treating John J. Sirica say the Watergate judge is resting comfortably today following a massive heart attack that left him hospitalized in critical condition.

Sirica, credited with using his power as a U.S. District Court judge to dig out the facts of the Watergate scandal, collapsed Thursday while delivering a speech on the professional ethics of lawyers.

Among those in the audience of 270 lawyers was Judge Bruce Mencher of the District of Columbia Superior Court, who said Sirica's "face was flushed and he just keeled over straight into the rostrum" at a luncheon meeting of the George Washington University law school alumni association.

Sirica fell into the arms of a federal magistrate sitting near him. William C. DeLodovico, a deputy U.S. marshal assigned to protect the judge, began attempts to revive him.

DeLodovico administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and pounded on Sirica's chest. He said he could detect no heartbeat. Doctors later credited the marshal's efforts with saving Sirica's life.

Sirica, who will be 72 next month, was rushed to the university's hospital. Hospital officials said he was "clinically dead" on arrival.

But on arriving at the hospital's emergency coronary care unit, he was given an electric shock to restart his heartbeat. Doctors said the judge suffered no brain damage.

A few hours later, the hospital reported, Sirica's blood pressure and breathing were normal and he required no medication. The hospital said that within a few hours, Sirica had regained full consciousness and had been visited by his wife Lucile.

"All things considered, he is doing as well as one can hope for so soon after a massive heart attack with cardiac arrest," Dr. Joel Gorfinkel said later Thursday.

Late Thursday night, a hospital spokesman said Sirica, while still in critical condition, "is resting comfortably at this time."

Sirica, a lifelong Republican, was appointed a federal judge by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in April 1957.

He presided over two extended criminal trials while the Watergate scandals were unfolding in 1973 and 1974, including the cover-up trial of former President Richard M. Nixon's White House aides.

Sirica's order that damaging tapes recordings from the Nixon White House be turned over to the courts was unsuccessfully appealed by the President's lawyers to the Supreme Court.

When the men initially charged with breaking in at Democratic National Committee headquarters in 1972 came to trial, one of them, James W. McCord, sent a letter to Sirica that exposed the Watergate cover-up.

Hearst case

minute film of the robbery pieced together by an FBI agent from 800 still photos taken by the bank's two surveillance cameras.

In the eerie and jerky footage, Miss Hearst is seen sprinting to the center of the bank lobby and bouncing from foot to foot as the other four bandits moved in precision to other areas.

Twice, she glanced over her shoulder at Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, the SLA leader who died along with five other SLA members, including three who helped robbed the bank, during a shootout with Los Angeles police a month after the holdup.

Once, Miss Hearst adjusted the harness that held her carbine and toward the end motioned for SLA member Camilla Hall to leave the bank. She followed DeFreeze out, running sideways while keeping her rifle pointed toward customers and tellers.

When the lights went up, the pale 21-year-old Miss Hearst nervously fingered her lips and quickly took a sip of water. She stared at the surface of the defense table.

Later, during cross-examination of another witness, the film was shown again at the request of Bailey. When it was completed, Miss Hearst rubbed her temple and had a pained expression on her face.

Nine witnesses were called by the prosecution Thursday. Bailey had no questions for four of them.

Miss Hearst, on trial on armed bank robbery charges, was flanked by six attorneys. She faces a maximum sentence of 35 years in prison if convicted.

A 68-year-old man who was a guard at the bank the day of the heist, Edward Shea, testified that Miss Hearst threatened customers. "The first person who puts up his head, I'll blow his m-f-head off," he quoted her as saying.

Shea pointed to the defendant and identified her as the one who made the comment. Bailey, however, tried during cross-examination to convince Shea that SLA member Nancy Ling Perry had uttered the obscenity.

He pointed out that Mrs. Perry was about the same size as Miss Hearst and he asked the defendant to stand. Bailey then asked Shea to describe Miss Hearst's height and weight.

"About 5 feet 6 and 120 pounds," Shea replied. Miss Hearst, who is 5 feet 3 and weighs only 95 pounds, turned her head and snickered as she sat down.

In an effort to discredit Shea's testimony, Bailey established that the witness had a long-standing hearing problem that required surgery after the robbery.

Shea also had difficulty recalling statements he made to FBI agents who interviewed him the day after the holdup. Bailey quoted at length from a prepared report of that interview and asked Shea if he remembered saying such. Frequently, Shea did not.

In other developments, two SLA members arrested on the same day as Miss Hearst in San Francisco last Sept. 18 said in Los Angeles they wanted a joint trial with her. William and Emily Harris, as well as Miss Hearst, have been charged with kidnap, robbery and assault stemming from a May 1974 shooting incident and the abduction of a youth in the aftermath.

The Harrises said Thursday that Miss Hearst was "far from the weak, hysterical little pampered heiress that her family tried to characterize her as" and that after being kidnapped she stayed with the SLA "on her own initiative and free choice."

Bailey said he would oppose a joint trial and branded the Harris statement as a "publicity ploy."

Also, the Chicago Tribune reported Thursday that Miss Hearst was given a chance to return to her family a month after her Feb. 4, 1974, kidnapping but refused.

The Tribune quoted a manuscript that federal sources say was prepared by Miss Hearst and the Harrises. In it, the newspaper heiress allegedly writes that she began to sympathize with the SLA two weeks after the abduction and embraced their militant philosophy.

Bailey countered that the manuscript is "in dispute."

The prosecution in her trial said in its opening statement that such a manuscript existed, and it appeared likely an attempt will be made to introduce it as evidence.

Stocks take wide drop

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly for the second session in a row today, registering disappointment over the House's vote against a bill to unregulate natural gas prices.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 3.85 at 960.96 on the heels of an 11.81-point loss Thursday. Losers held a 3-1 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Hopes had been building up on Wall Street earlier in the week that the House would pass the natural gas measure, taking it on a major step toward enactment. But instead the House turned Thursday to a substitute bill that would unregulate gas for smaller producers but actually increase controls affecting larger ones.

Winnebago was the most active Big Board issue, slipping 1/4 to 8 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .29 to 53.15. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .44 at 97.50.

Volume on the Big Board was a little less heavy than it had been Thursday, with 12.94 million shares changing hands in the first two hours against 15.67 million in the comparable period the day before.

Ford sets campaign swing across New England states

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — President Ford hopes to perk up his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination with a weekend blitz through New Hampshire, where some observers say he lags behind Ronald Reagan in both organization and momentum.

The visit, which also will bring Mrs. Ford and two of their four children to the state with the nation's first primary, is aimed at giving the President maximum exposure in a limited time. Aides concede they will try to emphasize his incumbency.

Although Ford strategists insist the President's voter appeal will stem from "the job he's doing in Washington," they said the visit will be crucial in the tight race against Reagan in the Feb. 24 primary here.

The state's election in past years has been a barometer of candidates' strengths and weaknesses. Reagan hopes to combine strong showings in New Hampshire and Florida on March 9 to build momentum in his drive for the Republican nomination.

Ford's first — and perhaps only — hunt for New Hampshire voters comes as national polls show Reagan gaining ground among Republicans and independents, and amid continuing reports that Ford's grassroots effort in New Hampshire is sputtering.

Ford organizers have tried to counter Reagan's numerous trips into the state by bringing several surrogates here from both within and outside the administration. But their impact, observers note, has been minimal.

Although saying the campaign is "going quite well," one key worker admitted the other day the candidates' absence has posed a problem. "I've never been involved in a campaign for someone that isn't there," the worker said.

Only in the last two weeks have Ford's organizers launched an intensive telephone canvass from 10 telephone banks around the state. Reagan's forces have been conducting a similar canvass using a dozen workers in Laconia since October.

A Gallup poll of Republicans and independents in January showed Ford holding 46 per cent of those surveyed nationally, but also showed Reagan climbing from 40 to 44 per cent since an earlier poll in November-December.

Florida high school riot leaves 30 persons injured

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — "It's killing the school — it's going to be like this for a long time," says a 16-year-old high school quarterback shot in the leg during a four-hour riot triggered by a feud between black and white students.

Authorities closed Escambia High School today after the rock-throwing and club-swinging melee Thursday over the school's nickname, "Rebels."

Three white students suffered minor gunshot wounds, 27 other persons were treated for injuries at local hospitals and five adults and three juveniles were arrested.

Escambia football quarterback Keith Hughes was shot in the left thigh as a group of whites exchanged taunts with a smaller group of blacks.

A black, Raymond Lindsey, 23, of Pensacola, was arrested and charged with three counts of aggravated assault in the shootings. Several whites later overturned his van, ravaged it and taped a poster advertising a March 6 Ku Klux Klan rally to the front.

Trouble broke out at the school when a large number of whites walked out minutes after school started and hoisted a Confederate banner up the flag pole.

Black pupils, 27 per cent of the school's 2,518 population, reacted angrily, and rock and brick-throwing confrontations raged in and around the school.

"Things kept building up and building up and the blacks kept making fun of us and we had to do something," Hughes said.

Escambia High called its athletic teams the "Rebels" until 1973, when U.S. Dist. Judge Winston Arnoff of Pensacola ruled in favor of protesting blacks and banned use of Confederate symbols.

The banned nickname became a sore point with whites and festered for nearly three years.

Hughes said the school should have been allowed to keep the nickname favored by whites because "it's been like that for a long time."

"The war was a long time ago. I don't think it should change anything now," he said.

Rector faces removal bid

OBERLIN, Ohio (AP) — The ruling vestry of Christ Episcopal Church here took the first step Thursday in the possible removal of its rector, the Rev. L. Peter Beebe.

The reconstituted vestry voted to ask Bishop John Burt to "dissolve the pastoral relationship" between the church and the Rev. Mr. Beebe.

Last week a majority of the vestry resigned to form a "church in exile" in support of the Rev. Mr. Beebe's stand on the priesthood for women.

A member of the new vestry, Eric Nord, said that details of the vestry's petition calling on the bishop to consider removing the priest are not being made public.

Although the new vestry members are in philosophic agreement with the priest, they have said they oppose his tactics of direct confrontation and disobedience of church authority.

The Rev. Mr. Beebe has said he will not resign unless he is ordered to do so by the bishop.

Services set for arthritis victims

A new organization has been established to aid Fayette County residents suffering from arthritis.

At a recent meeting in Columbus of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the Central Ohio Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, Mrs. William C. (Alice) Malone was named as the new chairman of the recently-formed Fayette County volunteer branch. She is pictured (middle) with Mrs. William M. Dillon (left), one of the Assistant

Committees were recently established to begin to provide services to the people of Fayette County. The public information committee is in the process of distributing literature on arthritis. These will become available in various locations such as in local pharmacies, physicians' offices, Fayette County Memorial Hospital and the Fayette County Health Department, or they can be obtained by contacting the foundation at 910 Lakeview Avenue in Washington C. H. (335-2487). Included in the literature is basic factual information on arthritis, specific booklets on rheumatoid and osteo-arthritis, and pamphlets on other types of related diseases such as gout, as well as home care manuals, quackery information, and handbooks and manuals for health professionals.

An equipment loan program is being planned by the patient and community services committee to provide articles needed by arthritis patients as requested by their physicians. These include special walking devices (canes, crutches, walkers, etc.), therapeutic exercise equipment, grooming and feeding devices, wheelchairs, and other equipment for special cases — all on loan at no charge to the patient.

Other services currently available are lists of arthritis specialists and clinics in central Ohio; speakers, films, and exhibits on arthritis for local service organization and club programs, patient counselling. In the planning stages are a public forum on arthritis, medical and allied medical seminars, and home care and friendly visitor programs.

The Central Ohio chapter serves a 25-county area. The Arthritis Foundation is the only national voluntary health organization dedicated solely to combatting arthritis, the nation's number one crippling disease. It seriously affects over 20 million Americans and results in 3.5 billion dollars in lost wages annually. It can strike the elderly and the young alike and causes over 14 million days lost from work each year.

More volunteers are needed in the Fayette County branch organization to help in the programs. Mrs. Malone asks interested persons to call her at 335-2487. Patients who wish more information about the Foundation's services are also urged to call Mrs. Malone or members of the patient and community services committee at 437-7569 or 437-7808. The next meeting, open to the public, will be on Thursday, February 12 at 8 p.m. at Court House Manor Nursing Home on Glenn Avenue.

A coat of tar and feathers and a ride out of town on a sharp-edged fence rail was the usual punishment for the theft of grain or a horse in Ohio's pioneer days.

Opinion And Comment

Thank you, tooth fairy

One criticism guaranteed to set public school teachers' teeth on edge is the charge so often made that they put in a lot shorter working hours than most of us. As teachers hasten to note when chivvied about the matter, teaching is not all that teachers do.

Recently a newspaper letter writer opined that teachers work only six hours and 20 minutes a day. The response was brisk and voluminous.

Our favorite reply was from a teacher who said "a squad of sympathetic elves" helped him get by: "While I teach, they keep records, plan lessons, fill out forms, design tests, and blueprint learning strategies for students who need special help." But then who "reads, evaluates, and grades the many papers that I carry home at the end of my 'six hours and 20 minutes' teaching day? Why, the Tooth Fairy, of course." So much for short days in the teaching game.

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

How do we educate presidents for war?

Nobody wants to think about Vietnam any more, which is too bad for Gen. William C. Westmoreland, whose new book, "A Soldier Reports," is filled with a thousand sober questions about war and peace that ought to be of major concern in an election year but just aren't.

We pay a terrible price when we elect a president who is absolutely innocent of any basic knowledge of what it takes to win a war in the field. Gen. Westmoreland is a respectful man who firmly believes in the constitutional duty of a field commander to obey the orders of the civilian head of government. Yet, though he does not say so in so many words, it is quite apparent that the dutiful "Westy," who headed our forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968 and came home to serve as Chief of Staff until 1972, regards Lyndon Johnson as a total disaster as a civilian-trained Commander-in-Chief. The most he can say for Johnson is that he "no doubt did his best; it was perhaps a situation beyond the mastery of any man."

Westmoreland, no fatalist, doesn't really believe in his excuses for LBJ as a war leader. He thinks the whole business about "graduated response" was idiotic. As he puts it, "Bomb a little bit, stop it a while to give the enemy a chance to cry uncle, then bomb a little bit more but never enough to really hurt. That was no way to win."

Westmoreland's book is eloquent in its recital of the "might have beens." We could have severed our commitment to South Vietnam with honor between 1961 and 1965, when "the lack of cohesiveness in the nation's heterogeneous society became clearly evident."

But John F. Kennedy, after his disconcerting meeting with Khrushchev in Vienna in 1961, felt he had to make a strong stand against Communism somewhere in the world. Once we were "in" a shooting war for the duration, we should have gone for the North Vietnamese jugular.

Even with the handicap of graduated response, says Westmoreland, we had our chances. But it was not in LBJ's character to seize opportunity when we had it.

The war, says Westmoreland, could have been brought to a favorable end following the defeat of the enemy's Tet offensive in 1968. We had what Westmoreland calls the finest military force ever assembled. The general's words about the misuse of that force are quietly anguished.

"Had President Johnson changed our strategy and taken advantage of the enemy's weakness to enable me to carry out the operations we had planned over the preceding two years in Laos and Cambodia and north of the DMZ, along with intensified bombing and the mining of Haiphong Harbor, the North Vietnamese doubtless would have broken. But it was not to be. Press and television had created an aura not of victory but of defeat. . . It was like two boxers in a ring, one having the other on the ropes, close to a knockout, when the apparent winner's second inexplicably throws in the towel."

There were other failures in addition to the unwillingness in Washington to exploit Tet. We waited too long for incursions into Laos and Cambodia. We failed to demonstrate to the North Vietnamese that they were vulnerable just north of the DMZ. Above all, the president, obsessed with his Great Society image, failed to level with the people about the nature of the sacrifices that were needed to win even the smallest of wars. In all honor he should have gone to Congress periodically for reaffirmations of the Gulf of Tonkin resolution.

Nixon, in Westmoreland's estimation, understood the application of power in war much better than Johnson. But Watergate dragged Nixon down, thus assuring that South Vietnam would be thrown to the wolves. Ironically, this happened after Nixon's diplomacy had already forestalled the possibility that the Red Chinese would enter the war if we had stayed with South Vietnam to the end.

One reads Westmoreland's indictment of LBJ - for that is what it is - with a mournful wish that one could know how a Morris Udall, or a Birch Bayh, or a Sargent Shriver, or a Jimmy Carter or a Fred Harris (the roster of Democrats scrapping for New Hampshire) would have acted in Johnson's shoes. One feels more certain about a Henry Jackson or a George Wallace, who are not contesting New Hampshire.

This is one reason why New Hampshire will define little for the Democrats. The test for character in the ultimate issues of defending the Republic is just not there.

CES halts new hiring

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rising costs combined with budget restrictions have forced Ohio State University's Cooperative Extension Service to halt hiring and cut travel 19 per cent to avoid cutting educational programs.

"We are hurting, but we're doing the best we can..." said Roy M. Kottman, extension director.

The extension is holding 26 of about 400 faculty positions vacant, and administrators expect 24 more vacancies within the next year. That will mean 50 vacancies by the end of the biennium, Kottman said.

To meet the travel cutback, faculty members are staying in the office writing bulletins or preparing slides, radio tapes or television films for mass audiences.

The extension also will hire 90 per cent less part-time help and allocated 20 per cent less money to supplies, equipment and utility costs, Kottman said.

Ohio participates in placement plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has completed all necessary details for full participation in the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, the state Department of Public Welfare announced.

Director Raymond F. McKenna said Ohio was the 34th state to join the compact as of Jan. 1. Membership was provided by a bill adopted by the legislature last year, he said.

McKenna also announced that department employe Jean Kleinschmidt has been named deputy compact administrator for the state.

Ohio Perspective

State industrial growth seen

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Slower but still steady industrial growth for northern Ohio has been forecast by an international consulting firm hired to determine the area's power needs.

Arthur D. Little Inc., in a power demand forecast prepared for the Ohio Power Siting Commission, said the stable nature of northern Ohio's industry will preclude rapid growth and expansion.

But, the firm said, that same stable nature should provide for a slow, steady increase through the 1980s.

The study was done on the area of Ohio served by the Central Area Power Coordination Group (CAPCO), an interlocking grid comprising the Toledo Edison Co., Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., Duquesne Light Co., Ohio Edison Co. and Pennsylvania Power Co.

CAPCO provides electrical power for the northern tier of Ohio counties, part of northwest and western Ohio and extreme western Pennsylvania.

The demand forecast is used by the commission to determine whether it should allow the construction of new generating plants or transmission lines.

In its forecast, the Little firm predicted slow growth for most industry within the CAPCO area, but a slower rate of growth than that of the nation as a whole.

"The establishment of industries in northern Ohio during the past decades has resulted in an industrial composition which is not likely to yield rapid growth," Little said.

"There is a high degree of obsolescence of industrial equipment. Manufacturers are tending to locate new facilities closer to growing markets and in areas where labor unions are weaker."

The Little firm predicted that manufacturing industries would expand about 2.2 per cent annually through 1980, then at 2.4 per cent through 1988. Expansion was at 2.4 per cent from 1964 to 1974, the firm said.

Little said the relative decline through 1980 would occur during a transitional period, during which industry would invest in new facilities and reorient itself toward faster growing markets.

"However, we predict renewed growth during the 1980s, not a continuing decline," the firm said. "The benefits of maturity lie in the diversity of skills and supplies available."

"Given some modernization of equipment and facilities, and some industrial reorientation, the area's economy will again grow steadily in our view," the firm concluded.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The bosses meet with 'surprise' welcome

DEAR ABBY: Before Christmas my husband phoned me from the office to say he was bringing home a surprise for me and that I should fix a pitcher of martinis. I was so sure he was bringing home the earrings I wanted for Christmas that I prepared the martinis, got myself all prettied up, minus my clothes, laid down on the living room sofa and waited for him.

Well the door opened and in came my husband with his two bosses! I was so stunned I just laid there. My husband immediately threw me his coat jacket. I guess I should have put it on, but instead I held it in front of me and ran out of the room, leaving my backside exposed.

The two men left immediately, and my husband was furious. I refused to go to the Christmas party because I couldn't face those two bosses. My husband hasn't had anything to do with me since. Can you help me?

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: You have more reason to be furious with your husband than he has to be furious with you. If that's the "worst" surprise a husband ever has when he comes home from work, he's lucky. I think you should both forget it.

DEAR ABBY: My question isn't exactly earth-shaking, but I need an answer. I am a happily married woman and want to have my ears pierced, but my husband has forbidden me to do so. He won't give me a reason; he just says he doesn't want me to do it.

Abby, I want very much to pierce my ears. I enjoy wearing earrings, and if I screw them on tight enough to stay on, after a while my ears hurt so much I have to remove them. And if I screw them on so they'll be comfortable, invariably I lose one or both. Pierced ears would eliminate this problem.

Does my husband have the right to dictate what I should do with my body?

LOVING WIFE

DEAR WIFE: No one has the "right" to dictate what another shall do with his (or her) body. If you want to comply with your husband's request, fine-but he has no "right" to demand it.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my daughter was married at a church wedding, which was followed by a sit-down dinner and reception.

A short-tall relative whom we rarely see socially asked to be invited, so we invited her.

She and her husband attended the wedding, dinner and reception, but they didn't send a gift.

It's been six months and still no gift from them. I have run into her accidentally several times, and she sneaks says, "I'm going to send that wedding gift soon."

If she says it again, how should I handle it?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: What's to handle? A gift is a gift-not an obligation. Forget it.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Watch your budget now. Don't go beyond limits until a pending financial matter definitely settled. IT COULD go differently than you expect.

TAURUS

A better day for your interests than you may realize. Waste no time getting started, but don't drive through, indifferent to the reactions of others.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

You may need a little extra push to put over pet projects now, but with your know-how and good judgment, you should be able to overcome minor obstacles.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Be prepared for competition, opposition to your plans. If aware that these exist, you can start the day with the premise that you CAN manage them - and you will!

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

A day in which the Leoite should shine! Now's the time to capitalize on your top-flight ideas; to add the novel twist that boosts your project to the finish line.

VIRGO

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Being in the right place at the right time could be the key to a new opportunity or an adventuresome experience on this highly stimulating day. Keep all senses alert.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You may hear some very careless talk. Be analytical and sift through all the wordage until you ring the bell of fact. Then, and only then, take any needed action.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Your impressions about certain acquaintances will be valid, but don't spread the word. Some information is best kept secret.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Some misleading influences. Take no promises for granted. Get everything in writing and, above all, be cautious in dealing with strangers.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with many talents which should lead to a happy and successful life, but how you use them will tell the big story. Once the Aquarian learns self-mastery and composure, he can reach more than one noteworthy pinnacle of achievement. You have a fine spirit of enterprise and are full of enthusiasm about all your undertakings; would make an excellent writer, painter or editor.

Churches enter Plutonium Arena

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A fateful choice, seen variously as offering either "untold good" or "incalculable evil" for humanity, currently is being argued among American religious and scientific thinkers.

Instead of dividing the two camps, however, it has drawn members of each into joint alliances, but on both sides of the issue, with philosophical jabs from scientists and theologians alike.

At stake is whether an energy-short world should turn to an immense, reproducible source of nuclear power, the byproduct plutonium that can be multiplied even as it is used, to boost continuing economic growth and a richer society.

It could mean a "Faustian bargain," says bioethics professor Margaret Maxey of the University of Detroit, referring to the storied Faust who made a deal with the devil for temporary delights eventuating in doom.

On the other hand, she adds, it could provide an unprecedented spur to a "new level of cultural evolution," bringing acceptance of "the imposition of a global commitment to a permanent, stable, more just social order."

The question was debated last week at a hearing by the National Council of Churches on a proposed statement by a panel of scientists, urging a U.S. moratorium — to allow more study — on programs to expand plutonium use in industry.

It would require a "technological paradise" of flawlessly arranged and universally heeded controls to prevent such expansion from poisoning the earth, said Nobel prize-winning physicist Hannes Alfvén of the University of California.

Observed biochemist John T. Edsall of Harvard University: "I'm unable to see such a degree of stability now or likely in the near future. It would demand a stability that has never existed."

If humanity became sensitized to the alternatives and was aware that maintaining the quality of their lives depended on it, "perhaps such a stable order would eventuate," Prof. Maxey said. "It's worth considering."

Nuclear engineer David J. Rose of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology said that "certainty is impossible in the real world," but the potential benefits justify the risks, which are part of any major advance. Like several scientists, he occasionally cited Bible quotations to back his points. He noted that in Genesis 4:8, "Cain slew Abel, legend has it with the jawbone of an ass. God did not abolish jawbones, but still works to improve the descendants of Cain."

Christian ethicist Preston Williams of Harvard University Divinity School said contentions opposing expanded plutonium use "seem to rest on fears of people — fears of big government, big military policing, the big bomb."

'Moral goodness' given emphasis

NEW YORK (AP) — While condemning the modern erosion of sex standards, the new Roman Catholic declaration on sexual ethics emphasizes the importance of sexuality and the "moral goodness" of sexual union in marriage.

It adds that sex gives a person the biological, psychological and spiritual characteristics that "largely condition his or her progress toward maturity" and involvement in society.

This positive evaluation of sex, differing from older negative Church teachings about it, says that only respect for the definitive quality of sex "insures the moral goodness" of sexual intercourse in marriage.

That objective bond of union, and not mere sincere intentions, is essential for sexual acts to uphold "true human dignity" and to preserve the "full sense of mutual self-giving and human procreation in the context of true love," the declaration says.

Out of this high view of sex, the Church statement hits at the contemporary confusion, downgrading of sex standards and "widespread aberrant modes of behavior" that violate the "true moral exigencies of the human person."

The decline in sex morals is linked with "the loss of a sense of God," the statement says, and has been "engendered by the commercialization of vice, with the unrestrained licentiousness of so many public entertainments and publications, as well as with the neglect of modesty."

The corruption has infected education and the general mentality, says the analysis drawn up by Vatican office on sacred doctrine. It adds: "Moral criteria and modes of living hitherto faithfully preserved have been very much unsettled, even among Christians. There are many people today who ... have come to wonder what they must still hold as true."

Singled out for specific censure were premarital sexual intercourse, homosexuality and masturbation.

Three nights of revivals set

A three night revival meeting has been scheduled to take place in the Immanuel Baptist Church, 1205 Leesburg Ave., at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 6, 7, and 8.

The meetings will be conducted by Darty Stowe, community director for the Southern Baptist State Convention of Ohio. During each night, Janet Duval, founder and president of D.E.A.F. will be interpreting the sermon to those in the audience who are deaf.

Throughout the revival, nursery services will be provided, and on Saturday night Feb. 7 a group of 15 students from Cedar College will be present.

Sweet Adelines organized

The first meeting of The Prospective Hillsboro Chapter of Sweet Adelines was held Jan. 29, in the Hillsboro Presbyterian Church.

Twenty members of the Clermont Valley Chapter of Sweet Adelines were present to welcome 40 guests from the Highland County Area. Communities represented were Hillsboro, Sabina, Greenfield, Batavia, Bainbridge, New Vienna, Wilmington, Petersburg, and Leesburg.

After much singing, the Immediate Past Regent, Mrs. Nancy Kayser gave a brief talk describing Sweet Adeline activities over the past 25 years.

The meeting was adjourned and guests were invited to the refreshment table by hosts Mrs. Diana Harvey, Mrs. Dixie Anderson, and Mrs. Pat Dorsey.

It was decided by the group to hold weekly meetings at 8 p.m. every Thursday in the Presbyterian Church in Hillsboro.

New village treasurer, council member seated

JEFFERSONVILLE — A new council member and a new treasurer were appointed Thursday night by

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the Dayton Power and Light Company has filed an application with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio requesting authority to amend its interim gas curtailment plan by eliminating those provisions in the plan which permit the carry-over of unused volumes of gas from the winter period to the following summer period. A public hearing in this matter has been scheduled for Monday, February 23, 1976, at 10:00 A.M. at the Lobby Hearing Room of the State Office Tower, 30 East Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215. At said hearing, all parties of interest will have an opportunity to present evidence material to the issues of this proceeding. Further information may be obtained by addressing an inquiry to the Secretary of the Commission, 111 North High Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

THE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION OF OHIO
Randall G. Applegate,
Secretary

members of the Jeffersonville village council.

Jeffersonville Mayor Gordon L. McCarty said Roger N. Snyder was appointed to village council seat to complete the unexpired term of Eldon McBee.

The term will be for two years. McBee resigned from the village council since he was transferred to Middletown.

Mrs. Fred Stires was appointed to the village treasurer's position. Mrs. Stires will also hold the post of assistant council clerk. McCarty said Mrs. Stires was appointed since no one sought the office at the November general election.

IN OTHER matters, council members opened bids but postponed awarding a contract to one of three companies on two indebtedness bonds for the village. The bonds total $11,981.44 and the council will make a decision on the lowest bid during a special meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Council members approved six street lights to be erected on Woodsview Drive at a cost of $43 each per year, and authorized safety-service director Lindy Sharrett to purchase a new snow plow at a cost of $1,600 and an $800 fogging machine for mosquitoes during the summer months.

Routine bills, totaling $3,183.58 for the month, were paid.

Egypt has textile plants, chemical, steel, cement and fertilizer factories and a film industry supplying the Middle East, Africa and Asia.

Scholar-athlete Baschnagel eyes pro football career

Noted for being a scholar as well as a football player, Ohio State University's Brian Baschnagel hopes to pursue a career in law, and he also wants to further his grid career in the National Football League.

The personable Buckeye wingback, who spoke Thursday night at the Fayette County Pork Producers banquet in the Mahan Building, said he has not been in direct contact with any pro teams, but he has been scouted.

"I'm looking forward to the draft," Baschnagel said. "I don't think they're looking at me as a specialized player, but as an athlete."

Baschnagel, who has been called Ohio State's most versatile back in years by head coach Woody Hayes, said he would play for any team that drafts him but that he prefers going to a team in the east. The native of Pittsburgh, Pa., added that he would like to enter law school in the near future. He just missed qualifying for a Rhodes Scholarship which would have entitled him to two years of study in Great Britain.

Baschnagel had nothing but praise for the Ohio State football program and its controversial coach Woody Hayes.

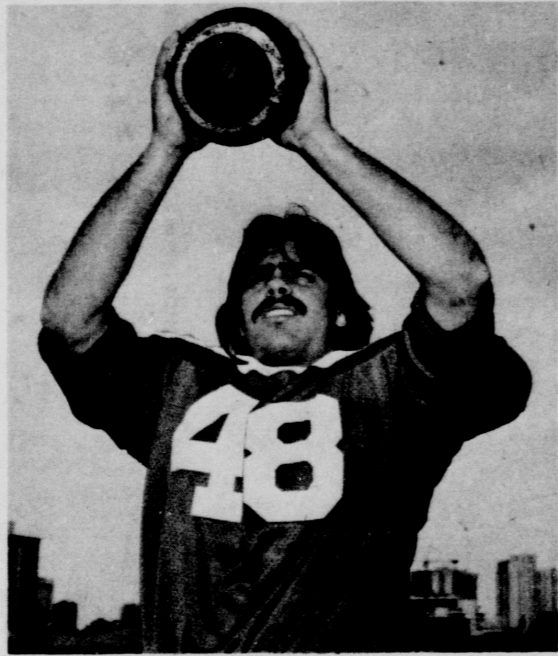

"Without him I wouldn't be anything," he said referring to the veteran Buckeye head coach. "He wants to get to know about his players. That's what makes him such a great coach."

Baschnagel admitted that he had reservations about coming to Ohio State four years ago after narrowing his choices down to OSU, Notre Dame and Penn State. But after one visit, he felt the rumors of Ohio State being a football factory were untrue.

"I met plenty of fantastic people and wherever I go I meet Ohio State alumni, who want to help me," he said.

The notoriety that comes with being a Buckeye has put Baschnagel in several funny situations. Earlier this year, he got a phone call from an admiring fan of about 11 or 12-years-old, who told him that he was a good football player and admired his pass-catching ability.

"I started to get a swelled head," Baschnagel said, but he asked the caller the reason for the conversation the boy said that he called to get Archie Griffin's phone number.

BRIAN BASCHNAGEL

Baschnagel said his most memorable moment at Ohio State besides being a four-year team member was the Buckeyes' 1972 Rose Bowl win over Southern California.

On the Woody Hayes — Nick Buonamici hassle that left the all-league defensive tackle suspended from the team, Baschnagel commented that he didn't know the reason for Hayes' action, but that he did know the two highly tempered men got into an argument before a team awards assembly.

Baschnagel said that the two parties have been talking things over lately and he feels Buonamici will be reinstated on the squad.

Fayette County games postponed

Ice moves tilts to Saturday

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

All four South Central Ohio League contests which were scheduled for tonight have been postponed due to the weather.

Both the Miami Trace-Circleville and the Washington C.H.-Wilmington contests have been rescheduled for Saturday night with 6:30 reserve-game starting times.

The Hillsboro-Madison Plains game has also been postponed. Officials at both Greenfield McClain and Unioto High schools could not be reached to confirm the canceling of that contest, but neither school held classes today.

CIRCLEVILLE AT MIAMI TRACE
The Panthers along with the

Washington C.H. Blue Lions are the only remaining league teams challenging Circleville for the league title, and the Court House hopes ride with Miami Trace.

A Panther loss will all but wrap up the SCOL crown for the defending champion Tigers.

Circleville won the first Panther-Tiger contest going away earlier this season, but Miami Trace has been tough at home having lost only two games—both non-league—this season on their home floor.

The Panthers have been getting a more balanced scoring attack of late which could severely hamper the Tiger's strongest weapon—defense. Art Schlichter has come around to be the Panthers' key scorer in the last couple of outings to support an already high-scoring starting five. With the exception of the Panther center position which is being shared by three players, the Miami Trace starting five are all averaging in double figures.

The Panthers do have one problem—an injury to leading scorer Allan Conner. If the Panther forward is ready to go at game time, Circleville could have problems.

WILMINGTON AT WASHINGTON
The Blue Lions will be out to avenge an early season loss to the Hurricane, and the way the Wilmington squad has been playing lately Washington C.H. may have an easy time.

Wilmington has lost its last three league contests turning a once title-contending team into a spoiler.

The Blue Lions on the other hand are riding high having won five of their last six outings.

Washington C.H. can't afford to take the Hurricane lightly, however. One more loss will all but ruin the Blue Lions title hopes.

A Blue Lion win coupled with a Circleville loss will put the pressure on both Washington C.H. and Miami Trace when they meet for the second time this season on Tuesday night.

HILLSBORO AT MADISON PLAINS
The Indians have the unsavory task of meeting the Golden Eagles at Madison Plains High School which has been the downfall for every league team this season with the exception of Washington C.H.

Madison Plains topped the Indians at Hillsboro earlier this season and the Golden Eagles should have an easier time Saturday night.

GREENFIELD AT UNIOTO
The McClain bench should get ready to see plenty of action at Unioto, because if the starters stay in for more than two periods things could become very embarrassing for the Shermans. That's not to say that the Tanks winless season hasn't already been embarrassing.

SCOL standings

	League	Overall
Circleville	9-1	12-1
Washington C. H.	7-3	9-4
Miami Trace	7-3	7-7
Madison Plains	6-5	9-6

Allin takes Hope golf lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — "Up until now," Billy Casper said, "it looked like a pretty good day for the old guys."

Casper made the observation when Buddy Allin came ambling in with a 68 and the second-round lead in the $180,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic with a seven-under-par 135 total.

That took an edge — just a tiny edge — off the excitement created by the record runs of Casper, 44, and Arnold Palmer, 46, winners of a combined 112 tour titles.

Palmer, who scored his last American victory in this tournament three long years ago, one-putted 10 times on his way to an eight-under-par 64, his best round in years.

And Casper played his back nine in 29 strokes, the best on the tour this season, on the way to a 65.

"It's kind of interesting," said Casper. "I don't ever remember shooting a 29 before. And I had to wait until my 21st year to do it."

"I felt like I was going to make it every time I got the putter in my hand," said the obviously-delighted Palmer, who used only 26 strokes on the greens. "I can't remember the last time I had a putting round like that."

Casper's seven-under-par effort left him in second place.

Sports briefs

Biff Bumgarner signs with BGSU

Biff Bumgarner, Circleville's versatile athlete, has signed a letter of intent to attend Bowling Green State University on a football scholarship.

Bumgarner, a first-team all-Ohio running back, must now attend BGSU if he plans to participate in the Mid American Conference.

However, he has until Feb. 18 to make his final decision. That's the date that national letter of intents come out binding a player to one college. Until that time, he will be eligible to sign with any team outside the MAC.

Bowling Green coach Dale Strahm said, "Bumgarner is one of the premier running backs in the state of Ohio and we are extremely pleased to have him in our camp."

Mrs. Punctuation wins Latonia feature

LATONIA, Ky. (AP) — Mr. Punctuation claimed his second victory in three starts this year with a wire-to-wire four-length triumph in the featured thoroughbred race at Latonia Thursday night.

The winner went the six and a half furlongs in 1:20 to return $7.40, $3.80 and $2.20. Dart Boy, second, paid $4.80 and $2.40. Deleterious was the show horse at $2.20.

The 10-9 combination of Tropical Michelle and Cast Phar returned $83.60 in the daily double.

A crowd of 2,842 wagered $316,203.

Matt Surina leads PBA tournament

CLEVELAND (AP) — Despite winning only three games, Matt Surina of Longview, Wash., clung to his lead after the first round of match play Thursday night in the Professional Bowlers Association's $65,000 Cleveland Open tournament.

Surina had a total pinfall for 26 games of 6,040 for a 35-pin lead over Tommy Hudson of Akron, Ohio at 6,005. Following them in the top five were Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., 5,966; Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., 5,936; and Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., 5,864.

Eastwick named newcomer of year

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rookie relief pitcher Rawly Eastwick was selected as the Newcomer of the Year of the World Champion Cincinnati Reds by the Cincinnati Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Eastwick tied for the National League lead in saves with 22, won one and saved another in the Championship Series and had two victories and a save in the World Series against the Boston Red Sox.

Eastwick joined the Reds May 20 after being called up from the Indianapolis Indians of the American Association.

Fred Taylor quits as OSU cage pilot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fred Taylor abruptly announced his resignation as Ohio State basketball coach Thursday, evidently the climax of a long-running rift with Ed Weaver, the Big Ten Conference school's athletic director.

Neither of the principals would comment publicly on their feud. But both will admit privately it hastened the 52-year-old Taylor's departure as the dean of Big Ten coaches.

"It's been blown out of perspective. I don't know if it exists like some people think it does," Weaver said of his difficulties with the school's basketball coach of 18 years.

"I don't think Fred has been a happy man here for the last five years," admitted Weaver.

"My resignation was for personal reasons. It has nothing to do with the way we're playing or our won-lost record," said the man who has rolled out a 297-149 record, one national champion and two runnersup.

"I don't think Weaver knows it yet," Taylor told a sports writer shortly after he hand-delivered his letter of resignation to Dr. Harold Enarson, the Ohio State president.

The resignation is effective at the end of the season.

The coach told his squad after practice Thursday for invading Michigan State Saturday night. "I wanted them to know before anyone else. I just hope they play well the rest of the way," he said.

Athletic department officials also blame Taylor's recruiting failures, a 28-40 record in the last three seasons and dwindling home attendance for his departure.

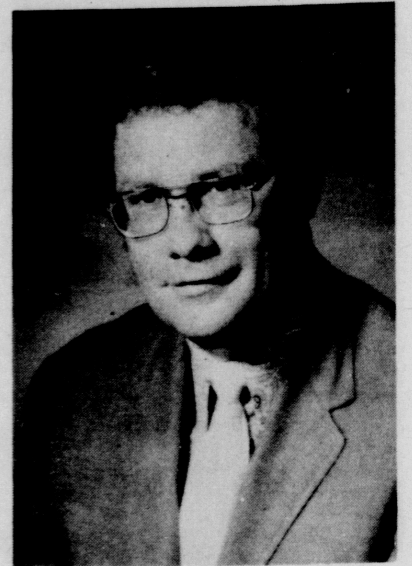

Taylor had landed only five first team Class AAA All-Ohio selections in the last four seasons. He lost such prizes as Scott May to Indiana, Phil Hubbard to Michigan and Mike Phillips to Kentucky.

"Fred is simply too honest," said of one of his associates.

Taylor's teams have not been Big Ten challengers since his 18-6 squad of four years ago. Attendance that year averaged 13,417. It was down to 8,454 last winter, even lower this season.

Taylor coached a conference record five straight basketball champions 1960 through 1964. But he pointed out, "only two in the last 13. That's wrong. However, lack of championships did not influence my decision."

Taylor and Weaver began to fall out four years ago after the game-ending brawl at Minnesota that sent three Buckeyes to the hospital. The coach thought he should have had better backing from his athletic director. He publicly said so.

Then, the following year, Taylor almost took the Northwestern coaching job. He supposedly used it as a bargaining tool at Ohio State, a move that irked Weaver.

Winter Olympic report

Sheila Young wins skating gold

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Sheila Young of Detroit won the Olympic women's 500-meter speed skating race today, giving the United States its first gold medal in the 12th Winter Games.

Cathy Priestner of Canada won the silver and Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union took the bronze. Miss Young, who had captured the silver medal Thursday in the women's 1,500 meters, won the 500 in an Olympic-record 42.76. She holds the 500 world record of 40.91 seconds, set a week ago in Davos, Switzerland.

Miss Young, an athletic 25-year-old from Detroit, who said she "wasn't really expecting a medal," struck a surprising silver in the 1,500-meter speedskating event Thursday. Koch, of Guilford Vt., whose goal was finishing in the top 10, wound up No. 2 to win the silver medal in the 30-kilometer (18.6-mile) cross-country ski event.

Klammer, needing a reckless performance in the bottom half of the treacherous downhill, the Games' glamour event, flashed to victory over defending Olympic champion Bernhard Russi of Switzerland by .67 seconds.

Miss Young went after the gold medal today in her specialty, the 500 meters. The 20-year-old Koch gets two day's rest before tackling the second of his four events, Sunday's 15-kilometer (15.5-mile) race.

With Miss Young, world record holder in the 500, and fellow speed skater Leah Poulos of Northbrook, Ill., rest America's sole hopes for medals in today's competition. The biathlon will be the only other event providing awards today. That sport, combining cross-country skiing and rifle marksmanship, is not an American specialty.

Also scheduled for today is the third of four runs in both the men's and women's luge, which awards medals after the final runs on Saturday, and the first two runs of the two-man bobsled.

After the midway point in the luge, East and West Germany were staging a battle for supremacy on the icy course. Detlef Genter of East Germany led the men's singles, less than one-fifth of a second in front of Josef Fendt of West Germany. Monika Schetschk of West Germany assumed the lead in the women's event over favored Uta Ruehrold of East Germany.

The United States' ice hockey team

attempts to succeed today where the best of the National Hockey League failed, when the Americans meet the overwhelmingly favored Russians, who logged a 5-2-1 record against the best the NHL had to offer last month.

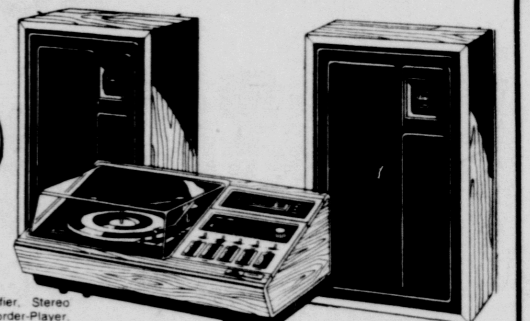

In other Group A matches, Poland meets West Germany and Czechoslovakia, expected to finish second, faces Finland in the double-elimination tournament.

The only pressure on the two American silver medalists was self-imposed since they weren't favored and their country wasn't overly concerned with their fate. On the other hand, riding on the handsome Klammer's broad shoulders was the fierce skiing pride of the home nation and the winter sports industry it holds so dear.

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — The bride on the cake wore white. The real bride wore a white tulle veil and a white garter.

The bridesmaids wore fading tans and the police outside wore mock stern expressions, as the Northern Kentucky city once proclaimed "Sin City," hosted a nude wedding to boost its nightclub business.

"I'll never do this again, I almost froze to death," said the best man, Bill Cottrell, 22, a senior at Ohio State University.

Stripper Linda Brigett, who said she was 28, her real name is Lambert, married Joe Krosclair, 27, at the Newport nightclub Thursday afternoon. Both said they are from New Orleans, La.

The bride, groom, best man, an usher who gave the bride away, and bridesmaids were all in the nude for the ceremony.

"I'm too old," sad Justice of the Peace Earl Leonard, who performed the ceremony in a gray suit. He was also the first one out the front door after the ceremony when the doors were unlocked to let the police in.

George H. Walker, 534 Damon Drive, central region manager of the Agrico Chemical Co., Washington C. H., will attend the 97th annual meeting of the Ohio Grain, Feed and Fertilizer Association Feb. 9-11 in Toledo.

Walker will serve as moderator of the fertilizer session on Feb. 9. He has served as chairman of the fertilizer committee for the Ohio Grain, Feed and Fertilizer Association during the past year.

Topics to be covered at the meeting include the proposed grain grading changes, the revised regulations on delayed price grain contracts, and the Environmental Protection Agency's plans for grain dryer operations.

Robert Lawrence, of Fayette Landmark, Inc., in Washington C. H. will also be attending the meeting.

said the bride, especially for those in the stripping business. "I was shaking because I was nervous about getting married."

"I flew down from New York," said Candy Mann, as the entire party remained nude on the stage for lengthy interviews before news cameras. "Morgana has a real knack for publicity."

Blaine told the party to go dress for the reception. After that they let the cops in.

"Let's see if you can get this on the 6 o'clock news," challenged Morgana, waiving her bouquet in the air.

"They're roses and daisies," she said, when asked what kind of flowers she was holding. "What do you think we have here in Newport—falsies?"

Two vehicle fires and eight building fires were fought by Washington C.H. firemen during the month of January, according to the monthly report submitted by Washington C.H. Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen.

Three persons were reported injured in blazes.

Chief Denen stated an average of 8.96 regular and volunteer firefighters reported to the scenes of city fires and a total of 5.5 reported for fire runs in Union Township.

Firemen also participated in two inhalator calls, one emergency medical call, four carbon monoxide checks and six gas leak or gas spill checks. Four smoke scares were phoned into the fire department which turned out not to be fires.

Total loss due to fires during the month of January, 1976 was estimated by Chief Denen to be around $1,940.

Other activities the department engaged in during the month included tours, demonstrations, safety meetings and training for fire department members.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department pistol team has started the 1976 season out in true form.

Auxiliary Deputy Jerry Coffey has shown his mastery of the .45-caliber and .22-caliber automatics by capturing five trophies in the last three bullseye pistol matches he has entered.

Auxiliary Deputy Alan Yeoman and regular Deputy Robert A. Russell won engraved pewter mugs for third place in the expert class at Cincinnati last weekend. The combat pistol match drew 225 competitors from the tri-state area and lasted three days.

The Cincinnati combat match allowed civilian shooters to compete, if a guest of a police pistol team. Hubert Ferneau was the guest of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department pistol team and showed he could hold his own by winning an engraved pewter mug for third place in the marksman guest class. Ferneau has done all the custom pistol-smithing for the county pistol team. Deputies Yeoman, Russell, and Coffey have contributed much of their success to Ferneau's work on their target pistols.

Last year the Fayette County Sheriff's pistol team tied with Montgomery County for second best in the state among all Ohio sheriff's departments.

MADISON MILLS — A brief meeting of the Madison Mills Elementary School Parent-Teacher Organization was held Tuesday.

Two fund-raising events were discussed. Mrs. Dorothy Bihl, chairman of the annual PTO fair, said the event will be held March 27. She reported initial plans for the project are now underway.

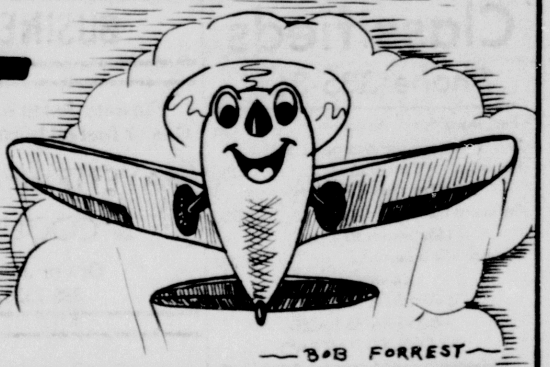

On Feb. 24, a skating party will be held at Roller Haven.

Secretary's and treasurer's reports were read before the meeting was adjourned.

Even though we've been having lots of snow, rain and icy weather and snow drifts on the runway, activity here has been considerable. First, a thank you to Charles P. Wagner, county engineer, and the people of his department who have been a great help in clearing the runway of drifts. It was a big help to the many corporate aircraft that have been in the past couple of weeks. To mention a few - Griffing Flying Service's Aztec from Sandusky, Reynolds Supply Seneca II turbo from Louisville, M.J. Kelly Co.'s MU-2 from Cleveland, a Bell helicopter from So. Columbus, home based in Philadelphia, Morgan Drive-Away's MU-2 from Elkhart and University of South Carolina's Cessna 310.

Local pilots in the news are George Teets who has received his private pilot's license and Bill Sever who has received his instrument rating. Other pilots flying have been Steve Gilliland, Millard French, Bill Dennis, Ron Ballard, Al Allridge, Don Simonton, Wally Coster, Pat Piper, Louie Poole, Ron Walker, Bob Lundquist, Larry East, Bob Wilson, Mike Prickett, Mark Merritt, Ron Doucette, Kevin Mallow, Joe Kingery, Larry Soldan and Ron Combs.

The next meeting of the Fayette County Pilot's Association will be held at the airport on February 11 at 7:30 p.m. After a short business meeting, a film entitled "Plane Sense" will be shown which concerns guidelines for the prospective pilot on buying, maintaining and operating an aircraft. Coffee and refreshments will be served and everyone is welcome.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Ear Drum Damage from Slap?

Is it possible that the ear drum can be broken by a slap on the ear?

Mrs. V.L., Tenn.

Dear Mrs. L.: A deliberate or playful, but sharp, slap over the ear with an open palm can create a sudden pressure in the outer ear canal.

When the hand is withdrawn, a suction effect is produced. This causes a perforation, or tear, in the ear drum. The blow does not have to be severe to cause damage.

Bleeding may or may not occur. Some degree of deafness almost invariably follows such an injury.

The size of the tear determines, of course, how quickly the loss of hearing will return and how readily the ear drum can heal.

Early treatment is essential. Antibiotics, given early, will prevent infections which might hamper nature's own healing mechanism.

Otolologists (ear specialists) have many ingenious methods to induce healing of the torn ear drum. A small piece of cigarette paper, or fine synthetic rubber membrane, gently placed over the perforation, helps to bridge the opening and promote healing.

These are removed after the ear drum heals. Almost always, hearing returns to normal.

Incidentally, a great many people, adults, and children, have injured their ear canals and their ear drums by using rigid cotton tips applicators. Despite the fact that the ear canal is curved and thus acts as a protective device, these injuries occur far more frequently than they should.

Even though my doctor and my dentist are friends and reliable I am still terrified when X-rays are taken each year.

Miss B.L., Tex.

Dear Miss L.: Many people like yourself have fear of X-rays. Like many other fears, the unknown is terrifying.

It is very often difficult to persuade people like yourself that radiation hazards are insignificant when X-rays of the chest or teeth are made infrequently.

Modern techniques use minimal time exposure for these routine X-rays. Physicians who specialize in X-ray diagnosis employ all the protective devices to insure that overexposure never occurs.

The use of the fluoroscope or X-ray for the study of the intestinal tract is a safe procedure. Your fear of overexposure is unwarranted.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled, "Pay Attention to Your Heart." For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Police may lose college opportunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of police officers across the nation may lose a chance for college training if President Ford succeeds in abolishing a $40-million law enforcement education program.

If Congress approves Ford's plan, hundreds of police departments could suffer a setback in efforts to get better-educated, better-trained officers. And scores of colleges and universities would be forced to curtail or eliminate courses in the criminal justice field.

Police officials, colleges and universities plan an intensive campaign to get Congress to continue the program. Congress defeated Ford's plan once, and some sources say it probably will again.

Currently, about 98,000 students are enrolled in law enforcement courses at 1,025 colleges and universities participating in the program administered by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

About 70 per cent of the students are working police officers, and another 20 per cent are employed by courts or prisons. These students receive grants of up to $400 a semester. The remaining 10 per cent are full-time students preparing for law enforcement careers, and they receive loans of up to $2,000 per year.

The program has been spending $40 million a year for the past four years, gradually rising from the $6.5 million spent to help about 20,000 students in 485 schools in 1969, the first year of operation.

The program was designed to spur police officers, some lacking any college training, to work part-time for criminal justice degrees.

"I am convinced the program has had a major impact in professionalizing police work," said LEAA Administrator Richard W. Velde. Nevertheless, he said in an interview, he supports the President's decision to seek an end to the program in 1978.

Some 200,000 students have graduated from college with the federal help, though the average educational level of police officers is 12.1 years, a little more than a high school diploma, said Jean Hunt Moore, the LEAA official in charge of the program.

A Senate judiciary subcommittee aide called the program "one of the few LEAA was able to point to as a successful venture." It has drawn little criticism and attracts more applicants than it can help.

Velde said the decision to phase it out was made "strictly on the basis that we've got to cut back the budget somewhere and this is relatively low priority."

Train crash probe set

WAUSEON, Ohio (AP) — Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board were expected to be on the scene today probing Thursday's head-on train wreck in which four men were killed.

The investigators, Elmer Garner and Harold E. Storey, were sent in from Washington, D.C.

Two Penn Central freight trains, moving in opposite directions, slammed into each other and the only survivor who might actually have witnessed the crash was listed in good condition at a hospital here.

Billy J. Fuson, 44, of Walbridge, Ohio was reported by a Penn Central spokesman as having leaped from the engine of the westbound train just before impact. The conductor on the eastbound train, Howard W. Phillips, 56, of Maumee, Ohio, also was listed in good condition at the Fulton County Health Center. He was riding in the caboose at the time of the accident, the spokesman said.

The four dead were identified as W.H. Davis, 42, Toledo; Eugene O. Fuller, 60, of Brooklyn, Mich.; Robert E. Green, 60, Elkhart, Ind., and Page E. Spray II, 30, also of Elkhart.

Three other crewmen were reported uninjured. Howard Gilbert, an official of the railroad, said they had been riding in the rear of the trains.

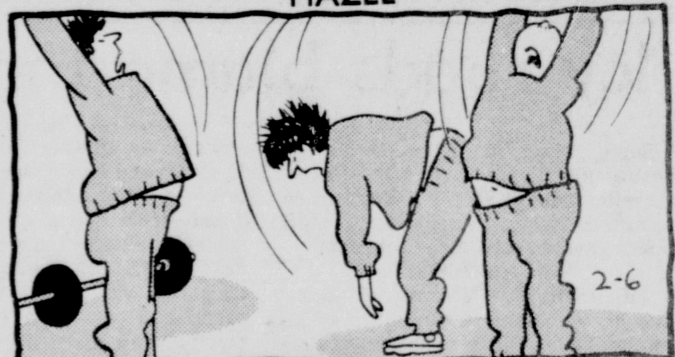

Long before the Ohio Company landed at Marietta in 1788, squatters had settled on the west bank of the Ohio River opposite Wheeling, W. Va., on ground now known as Martins Ferry, and they were the vanguards of the so-called legal settlers who followed. Some have likened these early squatters, who also settled elsewhere in Ohio, as the American Vikings, tough, courageous and deserving of a better fame than granted them in most history books.

GIRL LEADING NORMAL LIFE

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Anita Dumble, 16-year-old high school girl, was born with a rare disease, Chondrodysplasia Californica Congenita, no solid bones in her body. There is only one other such case on record, a baby girl who died at age 1, in 1901.

But the Dumbles were lucky. "We were living in the San Francisco area at the time and the doctor suggested we call a Shriner and have him sponsor her for the Shriner's Children's Hospital," said Donald Dumble.

Anita was admitted to the hospital. Today after 16 years of care and seven operations, she is leading virtually a normal life.

"The Shriners paid for the whole thing. We figure it would have cost about $150,000. She's very fortunate," her mother said.

Domenico undergoes surgery for damage to knee ligament

Former Washington C. H. football star Mike Domenico is showing slow but steady improvement at Hamilton's Mercy Hospital. He is in "guarded" condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

The family reports that Domenico underwent surgery Thursday to repair ligament damage to his right knee. The operation was completed by orthopedic surgeon Dr. Carl Palechek with no complications, and he is expected to be moved from the intensive care unit by next week.

The 20-year-old Miami University junior was struck by an automobile last Saturday morning while walking near the campus. He was first believed to have broken both legs and suffered a possible skull fracture.

His father, Fred L. Domenico, 137

River Road, reported Wednesday that the youth had regained consciousness, and tests indicated there was no brain damage. His broken left leg had already undergone surgery, and doctors found only ligament damage to the right leg.

Injuries to the head which were first thought to be a skull fracture were later diagnosed as a severe concussion, and he has shown steady improvement. Although he experienced some difficulty, Domenico spoke with his family Wednesday.

A starter in the Redskins offensive line for the past three years, Domenico had battled a neck injury throughout his college career.

Visitors are restricted to the immediate family and Miami University head football coach Dick Crum.

Hepatitis breaks out

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Health Commissioner Arnold Leff, under fire for not notifying parents of an outbreak of hepatitis in suburban Oakley, defended the action, stating it posed no serious threat to the community.

Leff announced Thursday that 14 cases of the liver disease have surfaced at Oakley Elementary School since Monday.

The disclosure set off a wave of anger among parents who were not informed of the outbreak.

Glenn Hendricks, an assistant city school superintendent, said the school "acted on the advice of the health department and we didn't want to alarm parents needlessly."

Leff said the outbreak is not "an epidemic or anything uncontrollable."
